LONDON BOMB TOLL 600 DEAD AND 2600 WOUNDED

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 9—With the scars of front line warfare running right through their city of 8,600,000, Londoners counted a toll approaching 600 dead and 2600 seriously injured after two nights of terrific bombing by Hitler's air force.

At the same time, the defiant Royal Air Force made mass raids of its own against Germany's great North Sea port of Hamburg, where tons of bombs were reported to have started great fires last night, and against Hitler's barge concentrations along the French coast.

Given a day of calm after night-long bombings—up to 3 p. m. only a little anti-aircraft fire was heard when an unidentified plane flew at a great height—Londoners assessed the damage from the greatest raids yet carried out against the city.

Fires in every direction, direct hits on air raid shelters, hospitals demolished, reverberating explosions near the Houses of Parliament, crater-rocked streets, some disruption of transportation, dislocation of the dock area, and widespread damage to dwellings and business property in the east end and long the Thames were reported as the result of last night's "marathon" attack of nine hours and 40 minutes, the longest of the war.

An air ministry announcement indicated casualties from last night's bombings would run into the hundreds, approaching those of Saturday.

A recapitulation of Saturday's figures showed 306 killed and 1337 injured, lower figures than the previous estimates of 400 killed and 1400 wounded.

HOSPITALS IN RUINS

The attacks were "severe" and "widespread," the Air Ministry said, but "so far as information is available, it is not anticipated that the number (of casualties) will exceed those of Saturday."

Heavy damage was done to many non-military targets, the ministry added. Mentioned were three hospitals and two museums. Unofficial information was that two world famed museums had suffered. (Censorship forbade their identification.)

"London has once more been the main objective of the enemy and its citizens have met the blind savagery of these latest night attacks with admirable courage and resource," the communique said.

Authoritative Royal Air Force quarters admitted it was "extremely difficult" to combat the raiders. They circled at great heights behind the protection of heavy clouds

10 TIMES WORSE WAR IS AIM

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 9—German bombers, guided to London by fires started previously, blasted the British capital anew in wholesale attacks last night, the high command reported today, and informed Nazis said the destruction wrought thus far is but a tenth of what is to come.

Telling of damage done in their second big week-end raid on the world's largest city, the Germans admitted that the British themselves made a "major attack" on Hamburg, Europe's largest port.

They said the R. A. F. rained bombs on a densely populated residential section, but missed military objectives.

The second raid on London played havoc with port facilities, oil tanks, electric and water works and storehouses on both sides of BRITISH SEAPORT ROCKED—Boast of the Nazi censors is this photo showing the mass bombardment of a British seaport, with at least 27 German bombs exploding simultaneously. Because of the cliffs (top, left) and the jetty and harbor (top, right) it is possible that this may be Dover, which has been bombed repeatedly in the past few weeks.

RAF Blasts Hamburg, Nazi Invasion Bases Along Channel

LONDON, Sept. 9 (INS)—Royal Air Force bombers, for the second night in succession, gave German bases and invasion "springboards" along the French channel coast a terrific shellacking, according to reports here today.

For several hours relays of bombers kept up a continuous attack on Boulogne, Calais and Cap Griz Nez, with the last named serving as the chief target.

A large force of British bombers also delivered a concentrated, three-hour attack on the German port of Hamburg, it was announced officially.

RAF bombers dropped repeated salvoes of heavy bombs and hundreds of incendiary bombs, the announcement stated.

Main objective of the Hamburg raid was the famous Blohm and Voss shipyard, where the luxury liners Bremen and Europa were built and which during recent years have turned out a large portion of Germany's naval vessels.

FIRES IN SHIP YARDS

An air ministry communique said:

"Repeatedly sticks of bombs were seen to crash across the docks and port installations. Many sticks of high explosives straddled the Blohm and Voss yards. Fires broke out in many parts of a wide target area and

PRINCESSES MARTHA, RAGNHILD AND ASTRID
Go to Residence on Cape Cod

CAPE TO WELCOME NORWAY ROYALTY

Protected by secret service agents, Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her three children left the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park today to spend Indian summer on pleasant Cape Cod.

The royal refugees will be domiciled at the Wianno estate of Frederic Schaefer, Pittsburgh socialite, long a friend of the royal family.

White House attaches refused all comment on the sanctuary offered the visitors here but the Boston Evening American learned they will be guests of the Schaefer family for more than a month and then will go to a home being prepared for them in Virginia.

MOTOR FROM NEW YORK

Bound here by motor with Crown Princess Martha were her three children, Princess Ragnhild, 9; Princess Astrid, 7, and Prince Harald, 3, and Countess Ostgaard, a lady-in-waiting, and her son.

Every facility for a late summer sojourn in an ideal vacation spot on the Wianno shores, overlooking Nantucket sound, has been offered the visitors at the Schaefer estate.

Norway's travelling royalty came to the United States on special invitation of President Roosevelt, making the voyage on the liner American Legion which arrived in New York a week ago.

Until their departure today, they had been guests at the Roosevelt's Hyde Park home.

"We are overjoyed at having Crown Princess Martha and her children as our guests," Mr. Schaefer said today in confirming the royal arrival expected this evening.

"I cannot say what protection has been provided," he added. "I can say that we have been friends for many years and that I know we will be able to make their stay here an enjoyable one."

Schaefer, a Pittsburgh engineer and manufacturer, was born in Norway and came to Boston 40 years ago. He long has been a friend of his young visitors' father, Crown Prince Olav, who is now

Draft Delay Clause Now Facing Defeat

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Senate and House will reach a speedy agreement on their conflicting versions of conscription legislation, it was predicted today, and the House provision for a 60-day delay will probably be discarded in the process.

Senator Burke (D.) of Nebraska, was confident in saying that Congressional action on the history-making peacetime selective service measure would be completed "this week, possibly by Wednesday."

Burke, co-author of the bill with Rep. Wadsworth (R.) of New York, was joined by Chairman May (D.) of Kentucky, of the House Military Committee in forecasting a swift settlement of Senate-House differences on the legislation.

The Nebraska senator said that the Senate-House conference would make several adjustments to reconcile the divergent versions of the bill, approved in one form by the Senate 10 days ago, and in a different form by the House on Saturday night.

CHANGES PREDICTED

The changes Burke predicted would:

Eliminate the controversial House provision for a 60-day postponement of the draft to permit a further trial of voluntary enlistments to raise the initial contingent to 400,000 men wanted by the army.

Approve the House provision calling for regisartion of an estimated 24,000,000 men between 21 and 44 years inclusive, instead of accepting the narrower Senate bracket affecting the 12,000,000 men between 21 and 30 years.

Approve the House provision for the commandeering by rental or lease of defense industries with which agreements cannot be reached on army and navy orders. The Senate alternative would have the government assume ownership of such industries by condemnation proceedings.

Chairman May and four other House spokesmen were ready to open conferences with a Senate delegation expected to be appointed during the day.

Senator Burke said that the proposed 60-day delay to try voluntary enlistments, inserted by the House Saturday by the close vote

Stork Brings Twins To Grandma at 42

Already she is twice a grandmother, but today 42-year-old Mrs. Mary Lottatore of Joy st., Somerville, nestled two more youngsters at her side—twins born to her five minutes apart yesterday.

The twins bring the total of her children up to nine, five girls and four boys, in 2 6years of marriage.

"It's hard at this time of life to have two more children," said the young grandmother, "but I guess I ought to be thankful they're both boys who can grow up and help."

There are five generations living in Mrs. Lottatore's family. Her grandmother is in Italy but her own mother, the grandmother of the twins, was by the bedside today.

A 24-year-old daughter, Mrs. Nancy Valantino, who lives in the same section of Somerville, is the mother of two girls, Jean Claire Valentino, 3, and Marie Theresa, 2, who today had their first wide-eyed glimpse of their twin uncles.

"My own children look like twins," don't they?" remarked Mrs. Valantino. "Everyone thinks they are, but they aren't twins.

"In fact, Mama's twins last night were the first we know of in the family at all. I guess maybe there were some way back on my father's side."

Heavy Vote Seen in Maine As G.O.P. Visions Clean Sweep

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 9 (INS)—Maine's state election, first in the national and a prelude to the national elections two months hence, gets under way today with Republicans claiming they would sweep all state offices. With fair weather prevailing, a heavy vote was anticipated.

Stiffest battle in this down-east poll of votes, as the G. O. P. sought to revive the scarred slogan "As Maine Goes So Goes the Nation," was seen in the contest for United States Senator.

In this battle, even the most enthusiastic supporters of Congressman Ralph O. Brewster (R.), foresaw a powerful threat in the personal popularity of the Democratic candidate, former Governor Louis J. Brann, aided by a list of prominent imported campaign speakers topped by Col. Paul V. McNutt, Federal Social Security administrator.

A third term for President Roosevelt became an issue in the senatorial fight. Col. McNutt pleaded for election of ex-Governor Brann to aid Senate support for the work of the President and warning "It is no time to put an amateur at the head of the nation."

Brewster, in a radio talk from Presque Isle, pleaded against "any yielding in our Republican front on any candidate," declaring it would "instantly be hailed by the devotees of a third term as an indication that the trusted tradition of a century is now to be discarded."

Headache Fatal To Ship Worker

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 9—After walking into St. Luke's Hospital unassisted and complaining he had a severe headache, Earl T. Sherman, 30-year-old shipyard worker, died today.

The "severe headache," an autopsy by Medical Examiner William Rosen disclosed, was the result of a fractured skull and lacerations of the brain.

Sherman, married and the father of one child, lapsed into unconsciousness shortly after his arrival at the hospital. His mother told police he had complained of the pains in his head, but had offered no explanation or mentioned being injured.

Dist.-Atty. William C. Crossley ordered an investigation.

FINAL BIDS BY KELLY AND DEVER

With the primary election eight days away, Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever and former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly today went into their home stretch drive for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Speaking over the radio, Dever said he would continue to discuss his record and avoid personalities.

Kelly, at rallies in Brookline, Dorchester and the South End, charged Dever with dodging public issues, and said he would discuss all matters he felt of concern to voters.

Dever said it was his reputation as a champion of the average man and woman which brought him through the Republican landslide of two years ago with a record plurality of 146,000 votes, the only Democrat in the state to win.

Kelly said he would work for a liberalization of the workmen's compensation law to provide higher payments to those injured in industry.

GOP Keeps Journal On F. D. Attendance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (INS)—The Republican National Committee today sniped at President Roosevelt's "attendance record." In a documentary press release, full of dates and names of places, the committee declared that the chief executive, since July 19, has been in the Capital 19 days and absent 32 days.

The GOP took July 19 as its starting point for the record, recalling that on this date the President, in his acceptance speech, said he had neither time nor inclination to "engage in purely political debate," must stay close to his desk, and abandon proposed journeys.

Old Colony R. R. Hearings Open

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission held new hearings today in the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad reorganization proceeding to determine whether to include the Old Colony Railroad in the reorganized New Haven system.

In its New Haven reorganization plan issued several months ago the I. C. C. made no provision for inclusion of the Old Colony and this aroused much opposition in Massachusetts.

After receiving numerous formal objections, the I. C. C. agreed to reopen the proceeding to "receive evidence in support of and opposition to the inclusion of provision for reorganization of the Old Colony" in the plan of reorganization of the New Haven.

Driver Quizzed In Fatal Row

A Back Bay taxicab driver was questioned today concerning the death of a Nantasket Beach cafe bartender believed to have sustained a fractured skull as a result of a quarrel.

The victim, found in a Tremont st., rooming house, was identified as Joseph T. Howe, 40, of Paul Gore st., Jamaica Plain.

Police questioned the driver with whom Howe was reported to have had a scuffle a few hours before over a fare at Tremont and West Springfield sts. The driver admitted grappling with Howe.

Hitler Death Flash Probed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—A phoney message, "Hitler Killed," was transmitted on the telegraph circuit linking government weather stations.

Weather Bureau officials, who attributed it to a prankster, said they did not know the point of origin, but were investigating.

Commander Francis W. Reichelderfer, chief of the weather service, intimated there would be nothing humorous about what would happen to the man responsible if he could be identified.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS 5 BILLION ARMY, NAVY DEFENSE BILL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt today signed a $5,251,486,329 appropriation bill carrying funds to help provide vital equipment for 2,000,000 fighting men and expedite construction of a two-ocean navy.

The biggest defense appropriation since the last war, the measure shoved defense commitments at the current congressional session past the $15,000,000,000-mark.

In addition to money for critical equipment for an expanding army, the bill supplied funds to start work on most of the 200 warships for a two-ocean fleet and for 18,422 army and navy planes.

The measure, largest single money bill in the nation's peacetime history, has these for its broad objectives:

1—Complete the total equipment required for the army of 1,200,000 men which the pending conscription bill would raise.

2—Procure reserve stocks of tanks, guns, artillery, ammunition and similar "critical" items, which require a long time to manufacture, for an additional 800,000 men.

3—Provide 14,394 more warplanes for the army and 4028 for the navy which, with those on hand and appropriated for would give the two forces approximately 35,000 planes of all types.

4—Permit work to start on the majority of the 200 warships projected under the 70 per cent naval expansion program designed to create the "two ocean" fleet.

5—Provide approximately $472,600,000 for new plant facilities, governmental and private, for the production of defense material.

Of the total, approximately $2,369,000,000 was in cash for both the Army and Navy, the balance being in contract authorizations for which Congress would have to provide the funds later.

In addition to funds for munitions, the bill carried $220,000,000, chiefly for new housing for Army anid Navy personnel and workers in defense industries, such as shipyards. Of this amount, $128,000,000 was earmarked for the National Guard to provide housing in connection with its recent mobilization.

$4,560,000 for N. E. Defense in New Bill

SCHOOLS OPEN IN SUBURBS

With boyish necks fresh scrubbed and girlish hair-ribbons spic and span, the second contingent of Greater Boston's shining-faced army of public school pupils marched to desk and classroom today.

Registrations generally were about equal in number to those of a year ago, as elementary and high schools reopened in Cambridge, Everett, Malden, Brookline, Arlington, Newton, Revere, Watertown, Woburn, Concord, Lincoln, Wakefield and Hingham.

SLIGHT DECREASES

Most of these communities reported slight decreases in elementary school enrollments, counterbalanced by small gains in junior and senior high school entries.

Boston public schools, starting their new year Thursday, anticipate a registration decrease of approximately 6000.

Medford and Winchester schools reopen tomorrow.

Biggest-of-to-school trek today was in Cambridge, where 25,000 pupils returned to their books.

Of this number, an estimated 9000 attended parochial or other private schools.

7000 REGISTER IN ARLINGTON

Arlington schools opened with a registration of 7000, nearly equal to that of last year.

High school enrollments were increased, with resultant crowded conditions. Elementary registrations were correspondingly decreased.

Malden and Everett each had approximately 9000 back at classes today.

For the first time in 40 years, all Malden High School classes were under one roof, made possible by a new high school building.

Everett's High was so crowded that sophomore commercial classes had to be transferred to the Fairfield-Whitney Junior High School Building. Junior high classes thus displaced were transferred to elementary school buildings.

9000 IN MALDEN, EVERETT

Concord reported 1500 public school registrations, a slight increase over last year.

Lincoln's registration of 275 was a slight gain over last year.

Bombing Cause For Trial Delay

WILLKIE TO TOUR 18 STATES

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 9 (AP)—While aides made final plans for a 7200-mile campaign trip to the Pacific Coast and back, Wendell L. Willkie worked today on a long series of speeches designed to further his bid for the Presidency.

The Republican nominee and his staff will leave here Thursday night for a stumping tour of 18 middle and far western states which President Roosevelt carried both in 1932 and 1936.

A special train will take Willkie first to Chicago for four short talks on Friday, and then will carry him through Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas before he first major campaign address at Coffeyville, Kans., a week from today.

Altogether Willkie will make 68 appearances—43 on the train platform and 26 in city parks or auditoriums. The latter will constitute his principal utterances until he travels through the middle Atlantic, Southern and New England states in October.

The candidate has not disclosed the specific topics of the addresses on which he is working, aside from indicating that during the western trip he may discuss business conditions, foreign policy and the farm problem.

He touched on defense and foreign problems Saturday night at a short talk in Memorial Park, where he declared that the Republican party "is the party of peace."

ASTOR MAY WED MARY B. CUSHING

Vincent Astor, head of one of America's wealthiest families may follow up his recent divorce with marriage to Mary B. Cushing sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt and daughter of the late Dr. Harvey W. Cushing of Brookline, it was reported in New York today.

Astor, friend of kings and presidents and a member of the top flight of international society, is 49 years old. His reported bride-to-be is 16 years his junior.

DIVORCED A WEEK

Less than a week ago, Astor was divorced at Reno by the girl he married in 1914, the former Helen Dinsmore Huntington. Mrs. Astor charged mental cruelty, announced a property settlement already had been arranged, and quickly received her divorce, in less than 20 minutes.

Vincent Astor

Miss Cushing, now a resident of New York City, formerly lived in Brookline. She was presented in 1925 at the opening cotillion of the Bachelors' Cotillion Club at Baltimore.

Later, she was presented to Boston society at a tea given by her parents the same year at the Chilton Club.

Astor is a great-great-grandson of John Jacob Astor, whose fur trading business founded the family fortunes. The inheritance was estimated at $100,000,000 when his father died in the Titanic disaster in 1912.

F. D.'s FRIEND

A personal friend of President Roosevelt, Astor has been active in movements to eliminate Manhattan slums and replace them with modern dwellings.

It was the Astor yacht, Nourmahal, which the President used for summer vacationing during his first term.

Real estate operator, banker, one-time publisher and writer, the 49-year-old Astor has sold $16,000,000 worth of real estate in recent years.

A few days ago Lang received a letter from his son, Lane, Jr., a member of a CCC camp at Phoenix, Ariz., saying he had been issued the same mess kit.

Hawaii Trains Anti-Spy Army

HONOLULU, Sept. 9 (AP)—A growing force of "bona fide" American citizens is being quietly trained here to cope with saboteurs in any defense emergency.

The Honolulu police, working with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, is presently training 1000 citizens to patrol essential utilities and industries and prevent sabotage, thus leaving armed forces free to battle any attacker.

Industries and utilities principally affected are water, telephone, radio, power, plantation mills and dairies.

The school for the "select" 1000 has been going on for some weeks, Police Chief William A. Gabrielson revealed. When the first 1000 are sufficiently trained, they will be replaced with other "loyal" groups, he said.

Such civilian groups are part of a wartime control plan which includes anti-espionage, rigid military censorship, military policing and the barring of aliens from defense plants vital to this Pacific stronghold.

Canal Zone Defense Works Strike Ended

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 9 (AP)—A strike at the Gatun locks defense projects appeared ended today as hundreds of laborers returned to work. A few demonstrations among native-born Panamans and West Indians remained out, but officials said they expected they would be back at their jobs tomorrow.

The strike began Thursday when about half of the 1200 workers demanded better food and living conditions and pay increases from 18 to 20 cents an hour to 30 cents for laborers and from 24 to 45 cents for artisans.

DEVENS UNIT ENLARGED

The recruit reception center at Fort Devens was being enlarged today to care for men to be conscripted into the army if the Burke-Wadsworth bill becomes law.

Saltonstall Urges Job Benefits for Draftees

President Roosevelt today received a proposal from Gov. Saltonstall that benefits of unemployment compensation be extended to include conscripts who find themselves jobless after serving the required period of military training.

Pointing out that under the present law men separated from army or navy service are not eligible for unemployment compensation, Gov. Saltonstall suggested that the problem should go to Congress.

"Questions immediately arise as to the extent of the benefit period and whether benefits should not be on the basis of last civilian earnings rather than military pay," the governor wrote

EXTRA DISTANCE IN HIS DRIVES— EXTRAS IN HIS CIGARETTE

YES, LARRUPING LAWSON LITTLE, NATIONAL OPEN CHAMPION, PREFERS THE CIGARETTE THAT GIVES THE "EXTRAS"— SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS

● YOU WATCH THAT BALL go screaming off the tee and you shake your head. How does he do it? Form, timing, power, wrist action, control ... he has them all—but Lawson Little has that extra measure of each which makes the difference between a good golfer and a champion golfer. Just as the extras in his favorite cigarette ... Camel ... make the difference between smoking and smoking pleasure at its best.

● WATCH OUT, PAR—here comes Little! No, Lawson Little is never content unless he can better par ... in his golf ... in his cigarette. "I want all the mildness I can get in my cigarette," he says. "Camels burn slower and give me extra mildness and flavor." Yes, Camels give all the qualities you want in a cigarette plus an extra measure of each. The extra flavor of costlier tobaccos preserved by slower burning. The natural mildness and coolness of costlier tobaccos plus freedom from the irritating qualities of too-fast burning. And on top of extra pleasure—Camels give extra value (see right).

Taxes to Turn Bomb Inventor's Profit to Debt

BALTIMOE, Sept. 9 (RP)—Inventor Lester P. Barlow figured today there would be only a microscopic net profit—if any at all—in the $592,719 he's to receive from the government.

Barlow, who won a 21-year contest last week over alleged government infringement of patents on aerial bombs, estimates federal taxes will take about $400,000 and state taxes $15,000 more.

"Adding lawyers' fees and debts," Barlow said, "I'll probably be in debt by the time this thing is finally settled."

Pair Facing Court Over Gun Practice

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9—Moreland Carter, Jr., and Byron Newton, both of York Village, faced charges of interfering with navigation today in federal court here.

The men were charged with shooting holes in a channel marker buoy which sank in York harbor.

Trio Held in Daring Burglary at Newton

Captured after blazing police guns blocked a second daring looting of a home in fashionable Chestnut Hill, Newton, within a short period of time, three youths today faced Newton district court.

Still sought, officers said, was a fourth youth, said to have possession of $5000 in jewelry stolen from a wall safe during the first raid on the home of Mrs. Mary H. Thompson, Hammond st.

Mrs. Thompson, widow of William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, was at her summer home in Manchaloseit.

The suspects, charged with breaking and entering and larceny, gave the names, police said, of Thomas A. Collins, 19, of Englewood st., Roxbury; Albert Butterfield, 17, of Dorr st., Roxbury, and Joseph Buckman, 17, of Minden st., Jamaica Plain.

The three were seized after they had allegedly returned to the dwelling in a stolen truck and attempted to drive off with an additional $5000 in silverware and linens, police charged.

As officers attempted to arrest them, the three fled amid a hail of gunfire, but were caught several hours later as they emerged from the woods near the Hammond Pond section, police said.

Newton police set a trap for the expected return of the raiders after Arthur Langlois, private night watchman, reported finding two large boxes containing silverware on the front lawn of the house.

Legion Clowns Offer Surprises

Laughs aplenty were promised Bostonians today as the 40 and 8 Society of the American Legion completed plans for their fun-making two weeks hence at the American Legion convention.

The 40 and 8 parade, replete with motorized locomotives and ludicrous costumes, will be held on the night of Sept. 23.

For three hours the marchers will clown down Park st. to Tremont to Boylston st., through Park sq. to Columbus ave., and then on to Massachusetts ave. and the Boston Arena. At 10 p. m. the organization's annual "wreck" will be held at the Arena.

Destroyer Fire Held Accidental

The blaze aboard the United States destroyer being recommissioned for the British navy at Charlestown Navy Yard today was written off by officials as purely accidental and not the work of saboteurs.

A workman's torch started the fire, it was reported, in a forward locker. Damage was slight.

CONNIE BOSWELL IS TOPS AT RITZ

Ken and Blinstrub's Hit New High With Features

By SAM BERENSON

Come the 23rd of the month, and this village is turned over to the American Legion . . . and that our visiting Legionnaires may not lack for top-notch after dark entertainment, salons hereabouts are being thoroughly polished and trimmed to give the Rialto its merriest face in years . . . since Convention Week and the autumnal debut of the gay spots arrive pretty much together, both the former soldier lads and the habitual stay-up set are in for a definite treat . . . new bands, new beauty, and the starriest names in the entertainment field will be on hand . . . with every club in town flinging wide its door in hearty welcome . . . It will be our good friend Karle Rohde at the baton at Stan Blinstrub's picturesque So. Boston Village . . . Karl and his band move in this evening and should do well here . . . this group is one of the best in New England and have a large following . . . a cleverly balanced floor merriment, featuring worthy "name" talent.

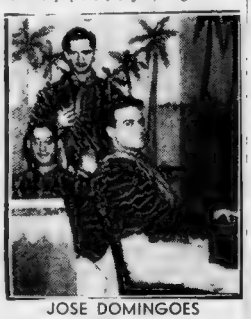
BILLIE LAYNE
Cocoanut Grove

A sparkling revue holds forth this week at the so-smart Cocoanut Grove, where top flight entertainment glues the patrons on the rim of their chairs . . . Is Mickey Alpert on way back from New York with N. B. C. hookup for the Grove? . . . Don't look now, but massio "Ryan"—of those double entendre waxings having such a wide circulation—is no other than a former noted wand-waver of these hyar parts . . . The latest of the song-in-spirits is Ann Corio . . . the ditty "I was a hit in Legit" . . . . A well-beaten path extends straight to the Crawford House, where holds forth that shapeliest of tassel-tossers, Sally Keith

The bustling Beachcomber dances into its Fall season with a policy of still gayer and more torrid revues than the Rialto has seen all year . . . and since the success of this young club has been nothing short of amazing, we can only visualize the ceiling-jammed attendance throughout its ear-muff session . . . Lew Conrad and his orchestra return to the popular Steuben Vienna room . . . the new cocktail room is just the last word and should click in a big way . . . to Jack Brown's Casa Manana, returns Bob Hardy and his men of swing to open the season on Thursday . . . a gala floor show has been arranged, introducing many of the topnotchers . . . The Manana's new bar is now open and indeed very attractive . . . Speaking of openings reminds us that the new Hurricane apparently has no superstitious qualms . . . they open their doors to the four winds on Friday the 13th . . . The new Tic-Toc club on Tremont street, near the "Met" bows in with a bang-bang revue

The suavely groomed Ken club swings merrily into an autumn round of fun-serving . . . which should find this oasis one of the most frequented of all White Way parlors . . . a world of brilliance in the current production . . . A sleek offering by the club Mayfair for the coming fortnight . . . wherein is packed all the speed and color and smart variety which have made this rendezvous a must . . . boldbilling to Jose Domingoez and his rhumba band . . . A neatly trimmed posie to the Ritz Roof for the lofty principles denoting its entertainment policy . . . all summer the top-hat set has cocked an eye at brilliant performers, danced to yeah-man rhythm— and now bends an ear to the purtiest thrushing ever—thanks to Miss Connie Boswell.

It may be September in Boston, but one would never guess it at Izzy Ort's El Tropico room . . . for in this sarong atmosphere, two bands continua'ly serve up their tsk-tsk rhythm and the entertainment is as exotic as an orchid . . . in the grille Don Humbert and the Magic Strings play for dancing and broadcasting every afternoon . . . Jack Brown, Jr., now a papa . . . yes, a girl . . .



JOSE DOMINGOES
Mayfair Band

For barbecue chicken, we highly recommend the Hi-Hat . . . dancing here . . . Scituate's Dreamwold Hall, home of the late Thomas Lawson, announces plans for remaining open all winter . . . palatial atmosphere, palatable food . . . Sam Golden, news seeker of the Hotel Essex, phones to grow almost incoherent over the brilliant new show which lies in the offing for Grill Room patrons . . . and so we take Sam's word that once again has the Essex scored smartly, making for an alluring date for the stay-up set . . . Another worthy revue is currently on tap at Dorgan's Old Harbor House . . . plenty of fast action, with enough variety to please no end the many Harbor House patrons . . . a popular spot . . . Nice goings-on at the Fox & Hounds Club on Beacon st. . . . one of the most interesting of our after-dusk spots, with an especial lure being the rhythm-making of the Tobias band . . . Ruby Foo seriously considering smacking down walls for larger quarters . . . the approaching Convention is certain to find plush ropes out at this suey center.

Action continues to keynote the Silver Dollar . . . dining and dancing, with enough rhythm and variety to mark this spot down as one of the most colorful along the gay white way . . . Billy Stone, emcee, getting a nice hand of applause during the four shows which are presented nightly . . . dancing and entertainment afternoons . . . for an original Italian dinner, hop over to the Boraschi Cafe on Corning st. in downtown Boston . . . the very, very best . . . The Woodcock's "Knotty Pine Room" attracting excellent business . . . a policy here of three shows nightly, plenty of speed and capable dance music.

Cain's famed Lobster House, just over the Fore River Bridge, at North Weymouth, reports renewed popularity in its snack bar . . . Bossman Wells, ready for the many Legionnaires who will be sure to make this one of their calling places . . . Host Chester Cappy, of that bustling North Easton gathering place, still carries on as a handclasper to many a p.m. guest.

Club Vanity Fair, popular rendezvous of Boston night life habitues for many years, opens for the fall season on Wednesday

Hitler Bombs Waste Of Time, Say British

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP)—If Adolf Hitler really intends to invade England, his "indiscriminate" bombing of London and the assembling of barges in channel ports is a waste of time and ammunition "from a long-range viewpoint," authoritative British military sources said today.

RAF planes swooped down on Calais, Boulogne, Dunkirk and Ostend Saturday night sinking and battering the barges the Nazis had been laboriously concentrating, these sources said.

The British know the Germans have been working feverishly on special oil-driven engines powerful enough to propel troop-carrying barges across the Channel, asserted these informants. RAF observers have brought back day by day reports of huge concentrations of the barges at potential jumping-off places.

"We waited until they got a nice lot of them together, then struck," one official said.

British observers said they could not see how Hitler hoped to get enough shipping together in such exposed locations to make an invasion attempt practical. They declared Britain has fully in the RAF's ability to repeat Saturday night's performance as often as necessary.

On the other hand, the calm activity on London's docks has been disrupted. Food and supply ships obviously will have to be diverted to other ports and their cargoes brought to the capital by train and truck.

"But what harm to our war efforts does the destruction of houses, churches and hospitals do?" they asked.

Air ministry sources said the only possible results the Germans could hope to gain from such tactics would be the breaking of civilian morale. Even the most pessimistic officials don't expect this to happen.

"The Germans as usual are bad psychologists," they declared. "Hitler simply doesn't understand the British mentality."

7 London Vaudeville Theaters Are Closed

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Palladium and six other vaudeville and movie theaters in London and the suburbs subjected to the threat of German bombs, will be closed indefinitely, their management announced today.

The others are the Hippodrome, Holborn Empire, Finsbury Park Empire, Stratford Empire, New Cross Empire and Penge Empire.

SWEDES SIGN RED PACT

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 9 (AP)—The signing of a new trade and credit agreement between Sweden and Soviet Russia, in which Swedish exports credited at 100,000,000 kronor (about $24,000,000) was announced simultaneously today. [illegible] exports to Russia and a [illegible] per cent [illegible]

Miss America Opens Tour in Stage Role

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 9—Against a backdrop of tears, Miss Frances Burke, 19, daughter of a Philadelphia fireman, sounded a four-alarm of her own today as she began to cash in on the title of Miss America 1940.

The tears of the brown-haired, starry-eyed Miss Burke, however, were tears of joy, for less than 12 hours after winning the nation's foremost beauty laurels, she started a personal appearance stage tour.

From the contest runner-up, Miss Rosemary LaPlanche, 18, as Miss California, came other tears turned on by excitement — and disappointment.

HONOR FOR BAY STATE

Roguish-eyed Miss Polly Connors, 21, of Bedford, finished fourth in the field of 52 contestants, but she won an honor of which she is even more proud. For the beauties themselves had picked Polly as "Miss Congeniality" at the Coronation ball.

"I'm happier with that honor, although naturally I'm sorry I couldn't have brought the Miss America title back home, too," Polly said.

The new Miss America, who takes over the throne of Patricia Donnelly of Detroit, made it clear she wasn't "boy crazy" while telling a few things about herself.

Matrimony has not even entered her mind, she said, although she certainly doesn't expect to become an old maid.

Her idea of a model husband?

"He doesn't have to be a fair-haired, handsome Adonis. He can be tall or short, dark or light, provided he has ambition, is kind and courteous."

GETS JOBS GALORE

Dimpled Miss Burke, by virtue of victory, stepped forth into a 12 months that probably will pass the most swiftly of her 19 years. Under contract to beauty pageant managers, she was headed for all sorts of assignments—from modeling hats and clothes to appearing in fashion shows.

Miss Massachusetts also received scores of offers of movie tests from talent scouts, she revealed before starting for her Bedford home.

"They wanted me to go to New York immediately for auditions," she said happily. "But I told them I'd rather go home first and then return for the tests."

Tough on Skunk And Others, Too

The Malden police skunk-hunting squad got its quarry with the first shotgun blast today after Mrs. Mary Willey of Autumn st., complained the odoriferous little animal was prowling in her back yard.

But that wasn't the end of the chapter. Chester J. King, a neighbor, informed authorities the charge from the shotgun cracked his automobile windshield and broke a rosebush trellis.

It smashed the glass in a kitchen window and nearly scared his wife and himself to death while they were eating breakfast. Outside of that the hunt was successful. Anyhow, the skunk was dead.

Building Up Good-Neighbor Policy

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

When President Roosevelt first announced his "good-neighbor" policy for dealing with the nations of Latin-America, the country generally accepted the idea with restrained enthusiasm. The plan was looked upon as a kind of vague idealism, something akin to the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war, fine in principle but with little significance in this hard-bitten world.

There was a feeling that the people of Latin-America looked on the United States with a depth of suspicion which no declaration of good intentions and friendly feeling could uproot. The old custom of "dollar diplomacy" had been too long in force to effect much of a change. Uncle Sam had sent too many U. S. battleships to the Caribbean countries and landed too many Marines — for the collection of debts and for other purposes — to convince the people down below of his change in heart.

SECRETARY HULL

The slow growth of seven years has done its work, however, and the good-neighbor policy is now one of the surest props in the policy of hemisphere defense. The credit belongs in large measure to the patience, tact, understanding and statesmanship of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. He has, in fact, helped to recast the thinking of an entire continent and made at the same time a splendid contribution to the country's foreign policy. He has created a wholly different impression in Central and South America of the purposes and intentions of Uncle Sam.

The decision of the United States to build naval bases in the Caribbean on sites leased from Great Britain, has now forged another strong link in the development of cordial relations with Latin-America. This action has been interpreted below the Rio Grande as definite proof that the United States is sincere in its intention to uphold the Monroe Doctrine and to prevent the spread of European influence or foreign isms on this continent. It has buttressed the idea of hemispheric unity and reduced to a minimum the menace of invasion.

LAUNCHING A POLICY

Foreign policy is too remote from normal life to awaken much interest on the part of ordinary citizens. Yet, in the present chaotic state of international relations, the upbuilding of American solidarity may have far-reaching importance in the years that lie ahead. President Roosevelt had this in mind when he launched the good-neighbor policy in his first inaugural address. He said then:

"In the field of foreign policy I would dedicate the nation to the policy of the good neighbor—the neighbor who resolutely respects himself and, because he does so, respects the rights of others—the neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors."

The leasing of sites for naval bases along the Atlantic, long needed for defense purposes, and the prospective leasing of other sites in the Pacific, has been received with tremendous enthusiasm by the bulk of the American people and also by the press. The New York Times said editorially:

"The group of air and naval bases that the United States has arranged to lease from Great Britain will enormously strengthen our capacity for hemispherical and hence, for national defense. The proposed bases at the Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia and Trinidad will make far easier than before the defense of the Panama Canal."

THE ULTIMATE GOAL

The fact that President Roosevelt selected a Republican, Col. Frank Knox, to head the Navy Department during this critical period has been a potent factor in swinging public opinion behind the program for hemisphere defense, regardless of partisan political feeling. Because of his life-long acquaintance with military and naval problems, Col. Knox has been an invaluable aid in carrying on the necessary negotiations. He has given his services with the single purpose of promoting national unity and strengthening national defense.

A foreign policy cannot be constructed overnight, because its value depends more upon the underlying spirit and good faith of those participating than it does upon treaties or formal covenants. Seven years ago President Roosevelt had a goal in mind, a goal which we are now rapidly achieving. He stated his objective in a recent talk to the Pan-American Union in these words:

"We acclaim today the symbol of fifty years of the American way. We are determined to continue on the way of friendship. We are determined that our mutual relations be built upon honor and good faith. We are determined to live in peace and to make that peace secure. We are determined to follow the path of free peoples to a civilization worthy of free men."

They'd Conscript The Parents, Too!

By CARLISLE BARGERON

(Assigned by Republican National Committee)

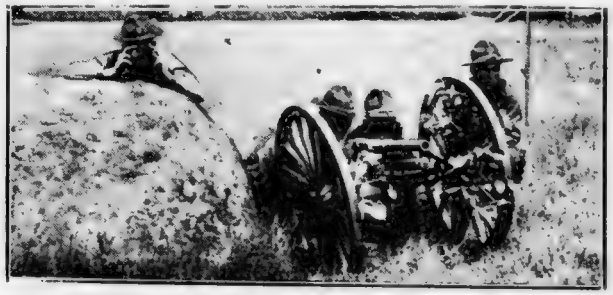
When Wendell Willkie and his two brothers went [illegible] 23 years ago they didn't stop and insist: "You've got to conscript our Mother and Father before we go."

We Used To Be Hard

Yet that is the feeling that is being worked up by the New Deal today. That is what this so-called conscription of property means. Ah, in the old days, the red-blooded youngsters were out to protect those who had brought them into the world, reared them and guided them up to manhood. The fathers had been to war before them as likely as not. One seems to be available for every generation.

As a matter of fact, fellows like the Willkie boys, didn't spend their time when they returned, grumbling about men who made $20 a day in a steel plant and spent 50 cents a pound for sugar and $18 for a silk shirt. They settled down to work and that's the reason Wendell Willkie will be the next President, we sincerely believe, of the United States.

Those rabble-rousers down in Washington who are doing more with their teachings to make us soft for Hitler than any so-called Fifth Columnists, say: "Oh, you draft the men but you won't draft the dollars, eh?"



Antiquated Guns to Fight Hitler

Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, who used to teach public speaking in school, does this a little better than the rest. Indeed, it is a treat to watch the gleam in his eyes as the words roll off his tongue. He's a sight.

The plain fact is that they are DRAFTING DOLLARS every day of the year, every minute of the day. What do you suppose taxes are if they aren't the DRAFTING OF DOLLARS OR PROPERTY?

Rich and Poor Alike

The theory of the compulsory military training bill is that the younger men, not yet established in a career or whose services can be best spared without upsetting the economic structure, should be given a year's training. This applies equally to the sons of rich men and the sons of poor men. All the authorities agree that the training is good for young men, that it will help them in later life.

We say this is the THEORY of the bill. We haven't any idea how the New Deal will administer it.

But do those youngsters who go off to the camps to train with stovepipes for machine guns and tin cans for shells under the New Deal defense program—do they want their parents' business taken away? Or if their parents are workers in a plant do they want them to be turned over to the good graces of Madame Perkins, Harold Ickes, Tommy Corcoran, Benny Cohen, Leon Henderson or that Leftist hot-bed, the National Labor Relations Board? On the square now, do you suppose there is a young man in the United States who wants his mother and father working for Madame Perkins? Simply because he is in a training camp?

The representatives of the A. F. of L. and the CIO haven't found her to be a good person to work WITH, to say nothing of working FOR.

Now, there isn't the slightest doubt in the world that the President can bring into line any industry that won't "co-operate" in the defense program. He doesn't need the Russell-Overton amendment at all. Mr. Willkie took the adoption of his amendment by the Senate to point out the trend in Washington, the general temper down there.

Wait Until He Begins to Squeeze

The fact is that under his emergency powers, the President can do just about anything he pleases, without any more legislation of any kind. And you may have forgotten it, but we are operating under a NATIONAL EMERGENCY right now. The President declared this emergency to exist shortly after the war broke out on the grounds that there were German submarines off our shores.

Congress has been afraid to go home for fear of what he might do. Yet the longer they remain in session the more trouble they get into. If you will piece together all the happenings in Washington you will see that the fight is between those who WANT to build up our National Denfense and those who want to use the occasion to seize control of the country's economic structure.

These are the facts!

CAROL IN EXILE LIVES LIKE KING

LUGANO, Switzerland, Sept. 9 (AP)—Carol of Rumania began his second exile today in luxury despite a Rumanian order freezing his millions of dollars in stocks and holdings at home.

Accompanying him to temporary haven in this tranquil Swiss lakeside resort was the red-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu, the same who shared his previous exile in 1925.

Before, when Carol renounced his right to succession rather than give up Mme. Lupescu, they spent five years in France. Now, the abdicated king's associates said, he is undecided where to go.

France, shaken by the European turmoil which jarred Carol from his throne, might attract him again - at least temporarily.

Some of his followers said Carol might go on to the Riviera after a short stay in Switzerland, and make his home at one of his chateaux there until he made definite plans.

The wealth he had in Rumania was sequestered yesterday in a decree by the military dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, who forced Carol out and made the king's 18-year-old son, the former Crown Prince Mihai nominal ruler.

Whether the holdings would be released eventually to the banished monarch or would be kept by the state was not disclosed.

Carol's arrival late yesterday was met by the friendly cheers of the Swiss townfolk. His farewell salute from Rumania had been a shower of machine gun and pistol bullets with which Fascist Iron Guardists splattered his train.

Swiss authorities extended him hospitality and took precautions to assure him privacy in one of the resort city's finest hotels.

Carol and his retinue occupied an entire floor.

Given to the employes as a 54th anniversary gift, the outing embraced a wide variety of sports and recreation, including golf, tennis, badminton, horseback riding, soft ball and horseshoe pitching. Dinner was served in the Nabnassett theater building.

Special guests included A. H. Rogow, general manager of the Boston Sears Roebuck group; George D. Simms merchandising manager; Harry P. Merchant, manager and George Newhall, assistant manager of the Cambridge store; Alex Jardine manager, and Gordon Rodd, assistant manager of the Fenway store.

Nazi Champagne Bottles Hit Palace

BERLIN, Sept. 9 (INS)—A champagne bottle attack by German fliers on Buckingham Palace was officially announced today.

One Nazi chaser group, celebrating its 200th aerial victory, flew singly over the palace yesterday, each pilot dropping a French champagne bottle which had been ceremoniously emptied en route.

As each bottle was emptied and then dropped the pilot shouted, "Heil Hitler!"

Carol Aides Face Probe Into Riches

BUCHAREST, Sept. 9 (AP)—Rumania's Military Dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, worked swiftly today to wipe out the last vestiges of the old Carol Regime in Rumania and build in its place a new totalitarian political structure.

Wielding the widest powers ever assumed by a Rumanian Prime Minister, he signed a series of weekend orders freezing the abdicated king's vast personal holdings and requiring several hundred office holders during Carol's reign to present statements showing how they accumulated their fortunes.

Big British Army Lands in Africa

CAIRO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Thousands of fresh British soldiers under full pack moved into fighting fronts "somewhere in the Middle East" today.

The reinforcements—which included many Australian airmen, hundreds of nurses from Scotland and England and several hundred navy and Royal Air Force fliers—landed at an Egyptian port yesterday from the largest convoy ever to reach Egypt.

Officials declined to disclose the exact number of troops which disembarked, saying only that there were "several thousand." The contingent included infantrymen, artillerymen, engineers and technicians. Most of the men fought in France before Dunkirk.

The troops departed in two 15-car trains for duty in Egypt and Palestine.

ChineseDeny Entrance Into Indo-China

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 9 (AP)—Chinese military circles denied today a French report that Chinese troops had crossed the frontier into French Indo-China. They declared the report was Japanese-inspired.

HOW LONDONERS TAKE A BOMBING

LONDON, Sept. 9—Night lives in bomb-lit London

Going to work after an air raid starts, one dashes from shelter to shelter and tries to remember solid-looking places against which to flatten when the guns and bombs roar.

A number of Associated Press staff men who thus "walked" to work last night, agree that the worst time is when the searchlights criss-cross overhead, making an "X marks the spot" sign in the sky.

Then, with a plane coming right above you, it's high time to duck, and quickly.

To one man who stood uncertainly outside a shelter at such a moment, a gruff policeman shouted

"Well, are you going to come in or stay outside? Either come in or go home. We have enough trouble taking dead people out of buildings, let alone picking 'em up off the streets."

London buses continue to run after an alarm sounds, but when bombs begin to splatter in their neighborhood they draw up to the curb, and the passengers tumble into shelters.

To the thousands huddled in shelters, the most comforting sound in the dead, breathless silence between bomb blasts is the click of infantrymen's iron heelplates on the concrete overhead. The most disturbing sound is that of an automobile gathering speed in second gear; it sounds like a dive bomber.

Two observers on the roof of the Associated Press Building in the heart of London learned this morning what concussion means. A big bomb struck 100 yards away, dropped by a raider who swooped exceptionally low.

Edward Robinson found himself amid a clutter of bricks, blown to the roof from the blasted building.

Laurence Harris, an AP photographer, who was "setting up" for a picture of the fire-tinged horizon, was jerked inward. Had he been thrown the other way, he'd have landed five stories down.

A glass plate in his pocket was smashed—by the concussion, Harris insisted, for he took care in falling to protect it.

Off duty and at home, Staff Member G. H. P. Anderson was in on the show as heavy bombs fell in his neighborhood with "express train regularity." Between blasts he could hear the sliding crunch of sliding walls. His four-story apartment building shuddered all night long. One blast was so near blackout curtains were blown from his windows.

In the lulls, a nearby church clock solemnly intoned the quarter hours. An Associated Press photo editor, Harold Outram, in walking to work, passed a house where he formerly lived. It had been blown up.

Merrill Mueller of the London staff of International News Service was very glad he snatched a few minutes' sleep in the office last night. While Mueller, after many hours of work covering the air attacks, dozed in the office his apartment was wrecked by bombs.

A delayed action bomb blew in the front of the apartment house where Mueller usually slept—and a few minutes later a high explosive bomb landed a few yards away, blasting the wreckage.

A bomb which made a crater in the center of a thoroughfare in central London wrecked a bus, but the passengers and driver had taken shelter and were uninjured.

The remark most frequently heard between midnight and dawn was:

"Lord, I wish daylight would come."

JAP SHIP FREE TO SAIL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Shakito Maru, her broken prow repaired after a collision with the fishing barge Olympic II, has been released from libel and made preparations to sail for Japan under a $203,000 bond.

King Views Havoc Done By Bombers

LONDON, Sept. 9 (INS)—His face clearly showing the agony he felt, King George toured the ravaged areas of London and its suburbs today sympathizing with the sufferers and the bereaved.

And when it was over he turned to his adjutants and exclaimed:

"Everyone has been wonderfully brave."

The King's special escort was the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd Wallace, member of Parliament from Hornsey, a district of the East End. This section was among the worst hit during the week-end onslaughts by gigantic German war planes which soared at low altitudes.

His majesty journeyed from West to East, going first to the East End and then the southeast area.

At every stop he was accorded a tumultous reception. He viewed air raid precaution workers still fighting fires and searching for bodies, went into a shelter where homeless were being temporarily cared for and talked to women and children many of them nursing bandages on head injuries.

The king obviously felt keenly the tragedy particularly when he talked to women whose children or husbands had been killed.

King George spent considerable time in one of the hardest hit districts. He climbed atop a huge pile of debris to look down into London's biggest crater, a gaping maw 75 feet wide and 35 feet deep.

Begrimed ARP men stopped searching for bodies in this area long enough to doff their shovels and picks for a moment of time to exchange a word of greeting with the king. It was there that he learned that the entire row of buildings housing whose cheap furniture and personal effects covered the area in the road.

doing his bit for Norway in England.

NO STRANGERS

Members of Norway's royal family are no strangers here. It was only a year and a month ago that Crown Princess Martha and the husband she now is separated from by war were guests on the North Shore.

Crown Prince Olaf celebrated his 36th birthday as guest of Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge and her sons at Manchester. The two sons of Norway's hanging in the living room was also a guest at club races at Marblehead and duly skipped about the course showing his heels to the most talented skippers at the Head.

The royal couple were greeted by Mayor Tobin when they arrived here for New York where they embarked yesterday for Montreal and Ottawa to confer with Canadian officials.

Royal foreigners accompanied their parents here, too, but they traveled a more less transatlantic telephone call.

The Boston visit was the climax to a 13,000 mile tour of the United States which included stops in 11 states.

Crown Princess Martha said then to reporters:

"Yours is a big and great country. We have been unable to see everything in but 10 weeks. We hope to come back again some day."

LONDON ROCKED, NOW FEARS INVASION NEAR

and rain. Searchlights could not penetrate the clouds and fighter planes had difficulty finding the bombers. Such weather is to be expected three nights out of five during the coming autumn and winter, it was pointed out.

ONE BOMB KILLS 80

The toll of dead in London last night was reported to be not nearly as high as that of the previous night.

More than 80 persons were killed by a single bomb that wrecked a large tenement in a workingmen's district of East London.

The Luftwaffe tries constantly to maintain the invasion scare, which started on the fall of France, by saying that the invasion is "imminent."

At the same time official and military circles in London say that the invasion may come at any time, but that it will be impossible to predict when, because of the bombs from entering the capital.

A government announcement of Britain's anti-tank defenses, made Saturday night in Stockholm, said that "long ships and barge concentrations are not operations are counted by scores, boats of 1,000 tons or more by the hundreds."

SEARCH FOR DEAD

As the fires of wrecked London's latest night of bombing—the nineteenth—had disappointed shortly before the long alarm was given at 8:30 p.m., the uncounted dead were still being dug from the wreckage of buildings and police and air raid wardens searched for delayed-action explosives.

Fires could be seen in almost every direction from the heart of the city. Stuka dive bombers carried their screaming attack to the center of London for the first time, plunging close to earth to direct the fire.

At least two time bomb explosions were reported. One damaged a hospital, where doctors and nurses were forced to keep space with the wounded. Another, an antiaircraft gun, blasted out a whole block of houses.

Draft Delay Clause Now Facing Defeat

of 207 to 209, was an "unwise provision."

"It is uncalled for because everybody knows we can't get the men needed by the voluntary method," Burke said. "The most we could get in a month would be 35,000 and it would take a year to get 400,000 men the Army wants before January 1."

Senator Connally (D.) of Texas, who helped defeat a similar proposal in the Senate, said the men drafted after voluntary enlistments failed to supply quotas "might be branded as slackers."

Because of the two separate House votes upholding the 60-day delay provision, however, senators said that the conference committee might be forced to take this issue back for a separate vote.

Most Senate supporters of the conscription bill expressed favor with the broader House age bracket and the House provision for compelling co-operation of recalcitrant defense industries.

Senator Burke said that use of the 21-44 age bracket would permit a "more selective process and permit more chance for deferments that should be granted."

NEED OLDER MEN

"We should get over the idea that only the younger men must do our fighting and training," he declared. "Although the War Department would take only 13 per cent of men from 31 to 44, they would be a steadying influence."

Senator Russell (D.) of Georgia, co-author of the Senate amendment dealing with non-co-operative defense industries, said he favored the substitute House proposal because it was "more drastic."

Russell pointed out that under the House Bill manufacturers of essential defense materials would face penalties of three years in prison and $50,000 in fines if they failed to give priority to the government program.

Under the House provision, the government would be authorized to take over on a rental basis those plants with which agreements could not be reached on defense orders. This contrasts with the Senate provision, which would give the government the right to acquire outright of such industries.

House passage of the Cinscription Bill by a vote of 263 to 149 Saturday set both House and Senate leaders talking about adjournment, or a recess until after the November elections. The items remaining on the calendar are agreement of the conscription bill, passage of the excess profits tax, and action on some minor measures.

Army Has All Types of Jobs For Draftees

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—When the butcher, the baker or the cabinetmaker is drafted into the army for a year's training, there is a good chance that he will continue working at the same job he had in civilian life. The boy who always wanted to be plumber may get his chance.

Army officers said today that mobilization plans provide that, wherever possible, old skills would be used and cultivated and new ones taught. There are 271 occupations open for enlisted men in the army, from aerial cameraman to yardmaster.

To help in getting the best man for every job, to make the fullest use of the training, experience and aptitudes of every soldier, the army has a job placement system as thorough as that of a private employment office.

No pigeon fancier will be firing a rifle as long as he is needed to tend homing pigeons for the signal corps.

Every man drafted into the Army will be interviewed and classified as to his education, occupations, hobbies, leadership and intelligence. Skilled interviewers and classifiers will be stationed at every reception center where trainees report.

Into every soldier's permanent records will go a large classification card, which not only can be consulted throughout his army career, but also might be used to help in placing him properly in civilian life after demobilization.

Some of the questions asked on that card are:

Duty desired now. Main occupation. Second and third best occupations. Highest position of leadership. Additional occupations, hobbies, etc. Favorite sports. Previous military experience. Talent for furnishing public entertainment.

Wherever necessary, trade tests will supplement the questionnaire.

Injuries Suffered In Elevator Fatal

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9 (AP)—Glorien H. Provost, 17, of this city, who was crushed in an elevator accident Friday night, died at a hospital here.

Italians Bomb British Bases

ROME, Sept. 9 (AP)—The high command announced today that Italian warplanes had bombarded ships in Alexandria harbor and again bombed Haifa, important oil port of British-mandated Palestine, setting new fires in oil plants.

Direct hits were scored on a refinery at Haifa in a surprise daylight raid, a communique said.

Other Italian planes attacked a railroad station and oil depots in Port Sudan, on the Red Sea, and Bomba, in Anglo-Egyptian Sedan, the high command added.

British raids on Mogadiscio, Massawa, and Berbera in East Africa were said to have caused "very light" damage and no casualties.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

"OH, how I hate to get up in the morning!" How often you've said that, facing that dismal moment when you grope for the alarm clock, turn the key, then lie back for another forty winks, despising life, wishing you never had to tackle it again.

Then there's that [illegible] Ble four o'clock slump in the afternoon when you wonder why on earth you should go on with all the drudgery . . . why bother what's on the week show down you'll [illegible] for a while.

Those moments of [illegible] Hours when we inwardly rebel against our loved ones, when we'd gladly quit the finest job on earth. Recognize them? Sure you do!

For every story you read of a quitter, there are ten thousand unsung cases of sacrifice and loyalty. How come? What keeps us plugging when we want to hit the gypsy trail?

IT TOOK ME many a year to find the answer to that question. As a Noble Soul I'm the world's worst example. If there's one word I hate above all others it's DUTY. If there's one thing I particularly loathe it's DOING THINGS WHEN I DON'T WANT TO DO THEM. Yet even I respected an impulse that overcame my own laziness and selfishness. Much as I longed to take the nearest exit -

I FELT I COULDN'T LET THE OTHER FELLOWS DOWN.

Meaning what? Meaning I can't walk out on the millions of decent, drudging souls who are plugging along, doing their darndest to create a fairer, friendlier world. Despite my personal restlessness, I can't let them down in their big job of civilization.

For, of course, that's how civilization is really made. Not by the heroic escapades of a few bold and brave individuals, but by the inspired laws and programs of certain great leaders, but by the long, patient struggle and sacrifice of the obscure masses.

The weary fathers who forego their dreams of a [illegible] drag themselves out of bed before dawn to milk the cows and plow the south pasture, or ride the street car forty [illegible] the office.

The tired, decent [illegible] who [illegible] back [illegible] continuous youth within them to [illegible] the same old men's duds, the same old socks, scrub the same old floors, day after day.

Not the great war lords or financiers, but the drudging leaders, actors and artists, but these forgotten ones who have made and are preserving civilization.

They have made civilization as the coral reefs are made. There's nothing exciting about being one small coral creature which lives and dies in seeming futility. Yet out of the residue of billions of such small coral creatures, islands rise, continents are born.

They had no individual ambitions. Islands or continents, those small creatures. They simply lived their [illegible] or careers . . . they did not plan [illegible]

Portsmouth Navy Yard Blacked Out

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 9—Navy yard officials today described as "entirely satisfactory" a five-minute black out at the navy yard here at which cottage to a million lights was cut off.

Shops, officers' quarters, submarine barracks, the hospital and the naval prison were in darkness for five minutes in the first of a series of precautionary tests against air raids.

Trotsky and ex-King Carol indicate that it's the open season for assassinations. An old friend of Trotsky's called on him and left him in worse shape than ten cents worth of scrap iron.

Some good neighbors fired a seven-slug salute at Carol. Of course we realize it's difficult to pot a dictator because they change radio stations like Napoleon used to switch horses.

Trotsky was chased around the world by welcome committees. And after they got through with him not even an army doctor would waste iodine on him.

Carol escaped by the fringe on his epaulets because he comes from a long line of clay pigeons. But it indicates that the head that wears a crown will last longer in an old straw hat.

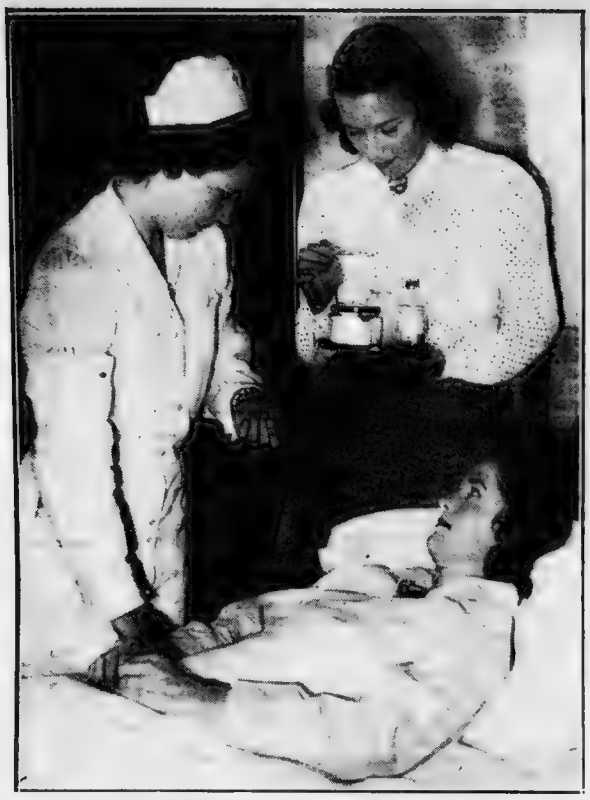
50,000 WAR NURSES

Red Cross Plans Bay State Training Course



Pupil Learns How Nurse Takes Patient's Temperature

Now, Pupil Learns How to Make Patient Comfortable For Meal

Emergency Training Stressed

Boston Chapter of the American Red Cross today revealed plans for the training of 50,000 Massachusetts girls in a practical nursing course that would enable them to cope with any emergency.

The course is being given as a part of defense measures such as are being taken up by many concerns all over the country.

According to Mrs. Jessie Hugg, director of the course, the first class of 100 girls will report at 17 Gloucester st. headquarters on Sept 17.

Under the instruction of regular Red Cross nurses, the girls will first be taught simple steps in the care of the sick, taking temperatures, pulse and respiration, making an occupied bed, giving bed baths, and various ways of making the sick and the bed comfortable.

After the 24-hour course, the girls will know how to treat shocks, cuts and wounds, how to bandage and [illegible].

The nurses will teach classes in the intelligent saving of community money, precious both as a peace time necessity and in case of any eventuality.

Emergency is the thing in the class rooms. Nurses will show what to do if a patient vomits, or cuts a finger. They learn one from [illegible]. Among other improvised equipment they demonstrate bottles made from preserve jars, ice bags from inner tubes and backrests for beds from suitcases.

Classes will be divided into groups not exceeding 20 members, so that demonstration will be possible, and when they have completed the course each girl will be presented with a Red Cross certificate.

THE ARMY NEEDS all the experienced men its various branches can obtain. The pity is that some officials responsible for the making of rules and regulations apparently do not think so.

We are in receipt of a letter from a veteran soldier who wants to serve his country, but, because of sundry technicalities, is denied the privilege.

This veteran tells us:

"I have tried very hard to get a commission in the Judge Advocate General's Department, Officers' Reserve Corps, with the thought of being called to active duty.

"I find, however, that this department is top-heavy and no more commissions are being given.

"I also find that the lowest grade, which is captain, has a maximum age of 42. I exceed this age by two years."

Meanwhile, the legislative machinery of the nation is geared for the drafting of some eleven million young men, the vast majority of whom has never shouldered a gun and lacks the slightest knowledge of military life.

Under the pending Draft Act, many of these men will be taken from their families and jobs and COMPELLED TO SERVE.

But the government that seems so eager to get untrained, inexperienced youth, cannot find a place for a seasoned veteran WHO WANTS TO SERVE.

The situation does not make sense, particularly in view of the fact that Germany places a premium on knowledge, ability and experience, even to the extent of giving boys in grammar school a mathematical education generally superior to the average American college graduate's.

MORE COURTESY is to be the rule in the Boston Police Department. Henceforth, patrolmen will restrain their tempers and speak politely, even if the temptation to deliver a verbal blasting is overwhelming.

Furthermore, patrolmen will dress as presentably as possible and shun every indication of carelessness or sloppiness.

Such is the ultimatum that has gone out from the office of Commissioner Timilty.

What prompted the riot act, we do not know. Probably the able public safety head has received complaints. Maybe he was personally the victim of an obstreperous "cop." Or possibly he is merely seeking to have Boston put its best foot forward when the Legionnaires come here for their national convention.

The truth is that most Boston patrolmen are considerate, well-behaved gentlemen. We who live here appreciate that fact. And tourists who visit us generally admit it.

A small majority, however, persists in acting like pocket editions of Hitler.

Consequently, as is usually the case, everybody suffers for the sins of a few.

ANNAPOLIS ASPIRANTS—twenty-seven in the New England area—who had about given up hope of entering the United States Naval Academy may yet attain their goal.

Legislation adopted by our defense-minded Congress temporarily increases the number of midshipmen to provide future officer personnel for the expanded naval force.

As a result, young men who have been named as alternate candidates for the Academy are expected to begin their studies shortly.

This is commendable as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

Why not, as we have previously suggested, have a supplementary naval academy on the West Coast, where the fleet spends the greater part of its time?

This big country of ours, with its contemplated two-ocean Navy, can afford and certainly ought to have two "Annapolises."

Then more young men, not only from New England but from the other forty-two States, could be properly educated and trained for patriotic service in peace and war.

AN OLD THEORY that opposites attract each other to the degree of falling in love and getting married has been upset.

According to the distinguished Dr. E. Lowell Kelly, Purdue University professor, the situation is quite the reverse.

A study of three hundred newly wedded couples convinces him that similar physical and personality traits inspired the mutual attraction that led to matrimony.

In fact, according to Dr. Kelly, many husbands and wives are so much alike in appearance and disposition that a stranger might believe them to be brothers and sisters or, at least, first cousins.

We are not surprised. Common sense says that two people with conflicting views and contrary tastes cannot form so effective a marriage partnership as a more harmonious couple.

There is an abundance of truth in Beatrice Fairfax' remark that marriage is a concord of love and understanding, not an emotional endurance contest.

STAGE AND SCREEN COMEDIENNE MARTHA RAYE
One of Few Actresses with Genuine Sense of Humor

THE FACT of the matter probably is that every woman down in her heart believes a woman's place is in the home and is hoping some determined, firm-handed fellow will come along and make her stay there . . . Seeking a little cheer as a relief from the current news from abroad, I again unwittingly stumbled on a tragic tale in a magazine. It was about a young wife whose husband had invited his boss to dinner. And the dinner was a flop. The boss didn't like the food and neither did the wife of the boss. Once I invited a fellow who was my boss to dinner and so what? He enjoyed himself so much he decided to pay me twenty-five dollars more a week. I should send this to Ripley. Certainly I could get affidavits to prove it . . . Why do woman worry so much about how large their feet look? I guess it must be because they can't stand criticism from other women. Because no man ever turned aside from a good looking girl because she had large feet. Anyway, the character analysts say large feet are a sign of intelligence. Which shows, among other things, how greatly hotel house detectives have been misjudged by the uninformed.

ON THE BOARDWALK at the beach, I saw a tall, stately platinum blonde. That makes two platinum blondes left in America. This one and Edith Dahl . . . Martha Raye is one of the six women on stage and screen who really have a sense of humor. Martha, born Aug. 27, is a Virgo. It is said of feminine Virgos that they make the almost perfect private secretaries. They are not supposed to have any talent for the stage, but Martha seems to be progressing nicely . . Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney was formerly Mrs. John Hay Whitney. The amount of Mrs. Whitney's divorce settlement is unknown to me. All I know is her former husband's father left him over 60 million dollars.

EXPRESSING a strong opinion cat owners should be compelled to pay license fees a dog owner states: "The cat is a predatory and a selfish animal. Supposed to catch mice, he prefers catching and murdering birds. He doesn't care whether his owner lives or dies as long as he, the cat, has enough to eat and a place to sleep. You will note very few people of intelligence harbor cats."

WHAT is the most miles per day you ever drove in an automobile? Fellow writes in and claims he drove 925 miles in one day! Four hundred miles a day is enough for me . . . Said Socrates: "Fields and trees teach me nothing but the people in a city do." Young men who live in cities are much smarter than those who live in the country. But the smartest fellows in the cities are those who formerly lived in the country.

MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Sept. 9—I have read in the newspapers that people have been donating their blood to England to use in transfusions for wounded soldiers. Somehow, it seemed that had nothing to do with me, until someone asked me yesterday if there was anything I could do to bring it to people's attention.

It appears that a cablegram has come from Dr. John Beattie, chief of the British Army Blood Transfusion Service, to the American Red Cross, requesting ten thousand pints of blood in the next four weeks. This would represent twenty thousand donors.

I imagine the Red Cross headquarters anywhere will be able to give one full information later on, but for the present I am told, Greater New York is the only place where the hospitals are actually co-operating with the various Red Cross chapters.

Donors can go to the Presbyterian, Mt. Sinai, New York Hospital and the Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn. This is the first time that an attempt at such mass production of blood plasma has been made. It will mean the difference between life and death to many wounded soldiers. It will hardly be felt by the individual donor.

THERE IS a grim article on Poland in Friday evening's PM. Among the list of things which they give as happening just now in Poland, the first item: "All men and women between sixteen and forty-seven must register for work in Germany," is a little reminiscent of the days when we sold slaves in this country and divided families, sending them to new masters in different places.

It is quite true that there is no place in Nazi culture for a man like Paderewski. No wonder his statue has been removed by them from Poland.

Saturday was a most beautiful day. I had a ride and a swim and worked for two or three hours. At 4 o'clock, the teachers from the three new consolidated schools came to tea at the big house. It was a great pleasure to have an opportunity to meet them, for I am away so much that I really feel I know little of the constructive forces in my community. I always feel that teachers are among the most important influence in any community.

In the evening we all attended Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau's annual clambake. It was cold, but the big bonfire looked warm and we all wore plenty of warm garments and went into the house later to dance.

This morning I rose early to ride, and we all went to church. Later we had a group of guests at luncheon.

MARY MARTIN SINGS; LEVANT PLAYS

By Leonord Lyons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9—When Mary Martin, visited New York some months ago she dined in the upstairs room at the 21 Club with Sam and Bella Spewack, the playwrights who selected her for the ingenue role in their musical comedy, "Leave It to Me," her springboard to stardom . . . After dinner the Spewacks were anxious to hear Mary sing her newest tunes. They noticed a piano, and Oscar Levant sitting nearby. Sam asked Oscar to play in accompaniment to Miss Martin . . . "I certainly won't accompany her," Levant declared. "I'm not in the mood" . . . Shortly thereafter Paramount signed Mary Martin to appear in the Bing Crosby picture, "Rhythm on the River."

JOAN BLONDELL

Her first assignment in that picture was to sing to the accompaniment of a pianist signed by the studio to portray a feature role. Mary greeted him—Oscar Levant, who, with a fat film contract in his pocket, acknowledged: "Now I'm in the mood."

CLARENCE BROWN, veteran director, is working on a new MGM film concerning a refugee stranded in this country. Brown summoned his staff of aides, and outlined the story . . . "It's a simple, tragic tale," he began. "Now get the picture—this poor little Hungarian girl becomes a refugee. She arrives in this country, broke. Her father is dying and here she is in New York, without a job, without a dime—and living in a lousy $200-a-month apartment."

DICK POWELL has resumed his broadcast series. His wife, Joan Blondell, has been signed to broadcast for a rival product . . . Lois Andrews, whose standards now are completely Hollywood, saw Lana Turner wearing a white-fox coat at Ciro's. "In a white fox," Lois sneered, "she looks just like any other girl."

RAPHAEL SOYER, with Thomas Benton, Grant Wood and seven other famous American artists, now are having displayed the paintings each had made of the characters in "The Long Voyage Home," Walter Wanger's movie adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's "The Long Voyage Home" . . . When the 10 artists arrived in Hollywood, nine of them announced satisfaction with the studio-space provided for them. Soyer, however, expressed dissatisfaction with the lighting. Wanger instructed him to find whatever space he thought had the best lighting, and promised to install Soyer's workplace there . . . The artist made a survey of the entire lot, and selected his site which was duly converted into his studio. That place was the Ladies' Powder Room.

BILLY ROSE, who has become an important art-collector, was invited to inspect, for purchase, some rare paintings stored in a warehouse for many years. The impoverished owner of these paintings owed $1500, and the warehouse proprietors permitted him to bring prospective buyers there, but not to remove any of the masterpieces without first paying the $1500 . . . Rose was aware of these factors which indicated probable bargains. He inspected two well-known portraits whose prices had been reduced to $12,000 and $7000, respectively. Billy fixed upon them the stare of a true connoisseur. "They're both fakes," was his measured decree—"but I'll give you $1000 for each."

NOEL COWARD saw Valentine Schley, the designer, who asked him to remain in San Francisco for a few days . . . "I can't," said Coward. "I'm going to Lake Tahoe and then to Reno" . . . "To Reno?" gasped Valentine. "But nobody goes to Reno, except for a divorce—and you've never been married" . . . "That's quite all right," Noel replied. "While I'm in Reno I'll sue myself for divorce—on the grounds of incompatibility—and give myself tremendous alimony."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Ann Corio had fun at Cambridge, and enjoyed the "rush" given her by society, academicians and an early batch of returning crew hair-cuts here in advance of Enrollment Day . . . At Mickey Alpert's very gay guest night at the Cocoanut Grove the other eventide, Ann took time to confirm, with grace and pleasure, the report that the topic of teatime conversation between her and Harvard's famed anthropologist, Professor Earnest Hooton, had been "Is Beauty Scientific?" . . . (The news is that Ann took the negative.)

MISS CORIO ALSO CONFIRMED, with amusement and a chuckle, the report that a press-bulletin issued by an awed press-agent of the Cambridge Summer Theater included the following paragraph: . . . "Fundamentally sweet, Miss Corio is extremely well-read . . . and is perfectly at ease when conversing with any person of culture." . . . Nor did Ann deny that she anticipates, with relief and joy, her imminent return to the more profitable field of burlesque (where there is less accent on culture).

ALTHOUGH THERE may be a cultural tinge to this item . . . (There will be a row reserved for professors at Ann's Boston stand, the Old Howard, and to get seats in this row "down front" applying professors need only express an interest in the problem whether beauty is scientific).

BOB CROSBY, BONNIE BAKER CO-STAR

By Loucila O. Parsons

Bob Crosby

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9—Bing Crosby's baby brother, Bob Crosby, has to lose 15 pounds in ten days. Now don't all start writing in with diets because he probably has his own for he has wanted this job more than anything else. He's going to be starred with Bonnie Baker in an original, which as yet has no title. You remember Bonnie Baker who made the song "On Johnny's Farm" famous? Bob's music will be featured and his orchestra and Twentieth Century-Fox feel they have another Bing in this young brother of his who will be sure to meet with a great reception if he'll only try and get rid of some of that superfluous weight.

JEAN ROGERS

The picture is similar to Kay Kyser's "That's Right, You're Wrong" and that was a honey. It played a lot of theaters when I was on my personal appearance tour and brought in plenty of shekels.

NEWS THAT RKO has borrowed Jean Rogers for the feminine lead in "Melvina Swings It" reminds me that not long ago the little Rogers girl was playing Flash Gordon's girl friend in the Universal serial based on the cartoon strip. Hollywood, which loves serials, was oblivious to Jean's existence but loads of over the country knew her as Dale, Flash's lady love. Since then Jean has been put under contract by 20th Century-Fox and has graduated to features. She is regarded as one of the most promising young players on the lot and this is the first time she has been loaned out. She'll have Kent Taylor as her leading man in the RKO comedy and that excellent actress Elizabeth Risdon is set for a supporting role. Leslie Goodwin directs.

PAULETTE GODDARD is in a quandary. Paramount is urging her to start work in three weeks on "The Lady Eve"—not a story of the mother of man but an English drama. "If I take the picture," Paulette said, "I will have to study diction and learn to speak with an English accent. I was supposed to have three months to take a trip with Charlie and I really feel I want to go with him if he goes to Bermuda or New York. But not to the Orient again. I wouldn't want to be away that long from the screen." She hasn't yet made up her mind to go to New York with Chaplin for the big opening of "The Great Dictator" but I have an idea he will want her with him, for it is as big an event for her as it is for him.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Peter Arno, the spectacular one, is at the Beverly Hills Hotel for three weeks and every eve some femme long-distances him from New York; there is a rumor that the Barrymore split is publicity for "The Great Profile" but I don't believe it; Wendy Barrie's heart-beat is Joe Gray, manager of the Miramar Hotel; Sonja Henie's mother is on her way to New York to visit Sonja and her bridegroom, Dan Topping; the Mary Beth Hughes-Robert Stack romance is hotter than hot. They dined together at Victor Hugo's just before he went to Lake Tahoe. He returns today and will go to Lake Arrowhead, properly chaperoned by his mother, the attractive Petzi Stack.

TALK IS THAT the William Powells may adopt a baby; the Lou's Kings have just taken an eight-weeks-old girl into their home. The demand for children in Hollywood homes seems to be increasing; Bob Leonard gave his mother a birthday dinner and an airplane trip (her first) to San Francisco; I call it nice of Joan Davis to coach Susanne Foster in an imitation she is doing of Joan in a Para picture. Buddy Rogers has a date with 20th to talk over a picture deal; Bing Crosby notified his family here that he is cancelling his South American trip because of weather conditions.

LEW AYRES was unable to work in his next "Dr. Kildare" picture on account of a cold sore which ruined his beauty; interesting that Vera Ralston, former silent star, is entered in the Lakeside golf tournament starting today; Verree Teasdale and Ace Jim Mathers are headed for New York on a vacation and they are taking their baby along; Earl Baldwin, Warner writer, and his wife expect the stork in February; Humphrey Bogart has been chosen by 100 members of Career Girls as the man they would like most to marry.

THE ARMY NEEDS all the experienced men its various branches can obtain. The pity is that some officials responsible for the making of rules and regulations apparently do not think so.

We are in receipt of a letter from a veteran soldier who wants to serve his country, but, because of sundry technicalities, is denied the privilege.

This veteran tells us:

"I have tried very hard to get a commission in the Judge Advocate General's Department, Officers' Reserve Corps, with the thought of being called to active duty.

"I find, however, that this department is top-heavy and no more commissions are being given.

"I also find that the lowest grade, which is captain, has a maximum age of 42. I exceed this age by two years."

Meanwhile, the legislative machinery of the nation is geared for the drafting of some eleven million young men, the vast majority of whom has never shouldered a gun and lacks the slightest knowledge of military life.

Under the pending Draft Act, many of these men will be taken from their families and jobs and COMPELLED TO SERVE.

But the government that seems so eager to get untrained, inexperienced youth, cannot find a place for a seasoned veteran WHO WANTS TO SERVE.

The situation does not make sense, particularly in view of the fact that Germany places a premium on knowledge, ability and experience, even to the extent of giving boys in grammar school a mathematical education generally superior to the average American college graduate's.

MORE COURTESY is to be the rule in the Boston Police Department. Henceforth, patrolmen will restrain their tempers and speak politely, even if the temptation to deliver a verbal blasting is overwhelming.

Furthermore, patrolmen will dress as presentably as possible and shun every indication of carelessness or sloppiness.

Such is the ultimatum that has gone out from the office of Commissioner Timilty.

What prompted the riot act, we do not know. Probably the able public safety head has received complaints. Maybe he was personally the victim of an obstreperous "cop." Or possibly he is merely seeking to have Boston put its best foot forward when the Legionnaires come here for their national convention.

The truth is that most Boston patrolmen are considerate, well-behaved gentlemen. We who live here appreciate that fact. And tourists who visit us generally admit it.

A small majority, however, persists in acting like pocket editions of Hitler.

Consequently, as is usually the case, everybody suffers for the sins of a few.

ANNAPOLIS ASPIRANTS—twenty-seven in the New England area—who had about given up hope of entering the United States Naval Academy may yet attain their goal.

Legislation adopted by our defense-minded Congress temporarily increases the number of midshipmen to provide future officer personnel for the expanded naval force.

As a result, young men who have been named as alternate candidates for the Academy are expected to begin their studies shortly.

This is commendable as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough.

Why not, as we have previously suggested, have a supplementary naval academy on the West Coast, where the fleet spends the greater part of its time?

This big country of ours, with its contemplated two-ocean Navy, can afford and certainly ought to have two "Annapolises."

Then more young men, not only from New England but from the other forty-two States, could be properly educated and trained for patriotic service in peace and war.

AN OLD THEORY that opposites attract each other to the degree of falling in love and getting married has been upset.

According to the distinguished Dr. E. Lowell Kelly, Purdue University professor, the situation is quite the reverse.

A study of three hundred newly wedded couples convinces him that similar physical and personality traits inspired the mutual attraction that led to matrimony.

In fact, according to Dr. Kelly, many husbands and wives are so much alike in appearance and disposition that a stranger might believe them to be brothers and sisters or, at least, first cousins.

We are not surprised. Common sense says that two people with conflicting views and contrary tastes cannot form so effective a marriage partnership as a more harmonious couple.

There is an abundance of truth in Beatrice Fairfax' remark that marriage is a concord of love and understanding, not an emotional endurance contest.

STAGE AND SCREEN COMEDIENNE MARTHA RAYE
One of Few Actresses with Genuine Sense of Humor

THE FACT of the matter probably is that every woman down in her heart believes a woman's place is in the home and is hoping some determined, firm-handed fellow will come along and make her stay there . . . Seeking a little cheer as a relief from the current news from abroad, I again unwittingly stumbled on a tragic tale in a magazine. It was about a young wife whose husband had invited his boss to dinner. And the dinner was a flop. The boss didn't like the food and neither did the wife of the boss. Once I invited a fellow who was my boss to dinner and so what? He enjoyed himself so much he decided to pay me twenty-five dollars more a week. I should send this to Ripley. Certainly I could get affidavits to prove it . . Why do woman worry so much about how large their feet look? I guess it must be because they can't stand criticism from other women. Because no man ever turned aside from a good looking girl because she had large feet. Anyway, the character analysts say large feet are a sign of intelligence. Which shows, among other things, how greatly hotel house detectives have been misjudged by the uninformed.

ON THE BOARDWALK at the beach, I saw a tall, stately platinum blonde. That makes two platinum blondes left in America. This one and Edith Dahl . . . Martha Raye is one of the six women on stage and screen who really have a sense of humor. Martha, born Aug. 27, is a Virgo. It is said of feminine Virgos that they make the almost perfect private secretaries. They are not supposed to have any talent for the stage, but Martha seems to be progressing nicely . . Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney was formerly Mrs. John Hay Whitney. The amount of Mrs. Whitney's divorce settlement is unknown to me. All I know is her former husband's father left him over 60 million dollars.

EXPRESSING a strong opinion cat owners should be compelled to pay license fees a dog owner states: "The cat is a predatory and a selfish animal. Supposed to catch mice, he prefers catching and murdering birds. He doesn't care whether his owner lives or dies as long as he, the cat, has enough to eat and a place to sleep. You will note very few people of intelligence harbor cats."

WHAT is the most miles per day you ever drove in an automobile? Fellow writes in and claims he drove 925 miles in one day! Four hundred miles a day is enough for me . . . Said Socrates: "Fields and trees teach me nothing but the people in a city do." Young men who live in cities are much smarter than those who live in the country. But the smartest fellows in the cities are those who formerly lived in the country.

HYDE PARK, Sept. 9—I have read in the newspapers that people have been donating their blood to England to use in transfusions for wounded soldiers. I was supposed to have three months to take a trip with Charlie and I really feel I want to go with him if he goes to Bermuda or New York. But not to the Orient again—I wouldn't want to be away that long from the screen." She hasn't yet made up her mind to go to New York with Chaplin for the big opening of "The Great Dictator" but I have an idea he will want her with him, for it is as big an event for her as it is for him.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Peter Arno, the spectacular one, is at the Beverly Hills Hotel for three weeks and every eve some femme long-distances him from New York; there is a rumor that the Barrymore split is publicity for "The Great Profile" but I don't believe it; Wendy Barrie's heart-beat is Joe Gray, manager of the Miramar Hotel; Sonja Henie's mother is on her way to New York to visit Sonja and her bridegroom, Dan Topping; the Mary Beth Hughes-Robert Stack romance is hotter than hot. They dined together at Victor Hugo's just before he went to Lake Tahoe. He returns today and will go to Lake Arrowhead properly chaperoned by his mother, the attractive Betzi Stack.

TALK IS THAT the William Powells may adopt a baby; the Lou's Kings have just taken an eight-week-old girl into their home. The demand for children in Hollywood homes seems to be increasing; Bob Leonard gave his mother a birthday dinner and an airplane trip (her first) to San Francisco; I call it nice of Joan Davis to coach Susanne Foster in an imitation she is doing of Joan in a Para picture; Buddy Rogers has a date with 20th to talk over a picture deal; Bing Crosby notified his family here that he is canceling his South American trip because of weather conditions.

LEW AYRES was unable to work in his next "Dr. Kildare" picture on account of a cold sore which ruined his beauty; interesting that Vola Parks, former silent star, is entered in the Lakeside golf tournament starting today; Verree Teasdale and Adolphe Menjou are headed for New York on a vacation and they are taking their baby along; Earl Baldwin, Warner writer, and his wife expect the stork in February; Humphrey Bogart has been chosen by 100 members of Career Girls as the man they would like most to marry.

SO EASY to have a satin-smooth new skin, as fair as though it had never been sunned for hours. It's done with a unique face-freshening treatment described today by Arline Gould; two steps are illustrated, mixing a paste and applying it, then scrubbing down to the new, fresh skin!

'Face Freshening Fillip'

By ARLINE GOULD

A NEW FACE for autumn may seem too much to hope for . . . but actually it's there for the taking . . . because you have a brand new complexion waiting beneath the dinginess of your tan . . . and if you release it as quickly as possible, you'll be pearly pale again and entrancing to see in your new clothes.

There is a brand new treatment a "face freshening fillip" that's designed to whisk away the worn-out summer skin, much more quickly than nature could possibly do it herself. What's more, the process is gentle and satinizing, and very, very good for your complexion because it stimulates youth-making circulation.

It's an extraordinary buy, too . . . the whole treatment, which consists of a special-preparation-powder and a large jar of rosy-pink cream, packed prettily in a pink box, costs but $1, which is the regular price of the cream alone!

It's principle is easy, and it's a thorough scourer not only of old tan, but of surface blackheads and whiteheads, assuring a cleaner looking complexion.

In using it, the cleansing cream is followed up by a mask made of mixing the powder. Before the mask dries on the face, you go to work on it with your fingertips and rub HARD. At that time the fussy old cuticle is swiftly removed.

If you'd like to learn about this unusual "face freshening fillip" to give your skin a creamy freshness and bloom, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Give Children Plenty of Eggs

MARTHA LEE

While a hot and abundant breakfast is a good beginning for almost everyone, for school children it is a "must." When attractive breakfast is a good beginning for a nicely served and well cooked, the school day is off to a good start and happy, healthy children will find the school room a pleasant place. Breakfast may follow a pattern that consists of fruit juice, cereal, muffins or toast, eggs and milk but it doesn't have to be monotonous, for fresh eggs can be cooked and served in a different way for days and days—even for years.

Sometimes it is a question whether it is more difficult to have variety in the child's lunch when it has to be taken in a lunch box, or in the one served at home. Here again, fresh eggs come to the rescue—in the lunch box, as sandwich filling, alone or in combination with other foods, or as dessert in baked custards, home-made cookies and cake. At home two eggs may be the main luncheon dish or dessert, according to individual likes.

Sandwiches are good daily travelers. Use plenty of butter and for fillings, chop hard-cooked fresh eggs with half as much cooked ham or bacon, also chopped and moisten with salad dressing. Spread on whole-wheat bread. Salmon sardines or grated cheese may be mixed with mashed or finely chopped hard-cooked eggs to make sandwiches children will like. And sweet pickle, chopped celery or cucumber, lettuce or cress may all be added at times to the hard cooked eggs, mashed and mixed with salad dressing.

EGG DROP SOUP

This gives variety, too. Have well-made meat broth, lamb, beef or chicken, boiling slowly. Beat 2 eggs fairly stiff with a bit of salt and pepper. Drop the beaten eggs a teaspoon at a time into the broth and serve at once.

DOUBLE-BOILER EGGS

These may be served for breakfast or luncheon, and are cooked to just exactly the right consistency. Beat 3 eggs with ½ teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper until very, very light. Add 1 cup of [illegible] pour into the well greased top of a double boiler. Cover immediately and cook over boiling water until mixture [illegible] minutes, when it will be creamy, but not dry. Serve on buttered toast or [illegible] and garnish with parsley. Serves 4.

FRUIT WHIP

Fresh fruit and fresh eggs go together very well indeed, especially in [illegible] fruit whip. Cooked unsweetened fruit pulped or put through a sieve. Beat whites of fresh eggs until light, allowing 1 egg white to each cup of fruit pulp. To each egg white add ½ cup fruit pulp which has been mixed with 1 tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Continue beating until the mixture is very light. Serve with cream, or soft custard, using 3 egg yolks to 1 cup cream or milk. If an electric mixer is used, the whip, use high speed for the egg whites but [illegible] speed when the fruit is added.

Eggs are natural body builders for children. But milk, eggs and vitamins are definitely needed in the diet of the younger generation. Dr. Miss Swartz Rose of Columbia University has shown that a group of young children who received a daily [illegible] addition of excellent quality egg per day, were strengthened better children than a control group receiving the same diet without the egg each day. His wife and thrifty mother who has a [illegible] to bring this packaged goodness to her children.

LUNCHEON EGGS

2 slices of crisp bacon
3 cups hot mashed potatoes
6 eggs
1 tbsp. butter
Add chives to potatoes. Heat well. Spread in buttered baking dish or [illegible] Make 6 depressions [illegible] bacon. Break 1 egg into each depression. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 15 minutes or [illegible] Makes 6 servings.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IF THE Robert Coulsons had imported Eddie and Wally they couldn't have created more of a stir than their "Nassau Ball" caused on the North Shore Saturday evening . .

They did import sea turtles for the soup, Birds of Paradise flowers, anthuriums, and all sorts of tropical plants for the decorations . . . and the rooms and porches of the Eastern Yacht Club were so completely transformed into a tropical paradise that all afternoon before the party started members of the club were conducting their friends on inspection tours . . .

Nursemaids also took their charges on sight-seeing trips through the rooms . . The little girls—future debs were impressed by the bank of tropical flowers against which Mrs. Coulson and her daughter received in the evening . . . but the boys were most intrigued by the small pond which was constructed right in the center of the floor with real live goldfish in it — and with the big bunches of real edible bananas which formed part of the decorations . . .

The Bahamian theme was even carried out in the menu and music . . . Guests enjoyed a buffet supper of tropical delicacies such as terrapin soup made from big sea turtles imported from Nassau, lobster souffle and meat and fish in wine sauces . . . Harry Marshard and his musicians stressed rhumbas and congas and everybody joined in singing "Mama She Wants No Peas, No Rice, No Coconut Oil" favorite ditty of the islands . . .

Guest of honor at this glamorous party was the Coulsons' debutante daughter, Ann . . . A tall, willowy brunette with a vivacious manner and winning smile, Ann received her guests in a gown of white tulle and lace with silver threads tracing a delicate pattern through the lace of the bouffant skirt . . . A little white feather in her dark hair, long white kid gloves, and an arm bouquet of scarlet anthuriums, completed her costume . . .

Mrs. Coulson received in a gown of pale gray chiffon and lace with full Bishop sleeves and two diamond and emerald clips at the neckline . . .

Nelson Odman, prominent yachtsman and member of the Royal Yacht Club of Nassau, was present with his wife, the former Peggy Otis of Boston . . . Peggy accented her light brown hair with a gown of flesh pink lace and chiffon—diamonds sparkling at her wrists, and a sable cape over her shoulders when she ventured out onto the porch overlooking Marblehead harbor . . .

Wears Gown of American Beauty Taffeta

BLONDE NANCY JOY BERNARD, in a striking gown of American Beauty taffeta, is an outstanding candidate for glamour girl of the new season's debs, and hardly danced two steps with each partner before another one cut in . . . .

Col. and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, just back from attending Mary Fuller's wedding at which they chatted with Governor Saltonstall and four ex-Governors, as well as with the Orcutts, the Hobbses, the Horace Morisons and many other prominent Boston guests, were the center of a jolly crowd of dancers . . .

The Robert Millers of Marblehead enjoyed their buffet supper in a group with Phil and Nancy Tucker, and Roddy Emerson . . . Mary O'Day was the center of an admiring group of stags as she toasted her toes and carried on an animated conversation in front of the cosy open fire between dances . . .

Bostonians at Maine Fetes

Lending considerable glamour to the late season activities in Maine, is Archduke Otto, eldest son of Empress Zita of Austria, now in Royalston, Mass., who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carver of New York, at their summer home in Searsport.

Miss Julia Carpenter of Boston, Mrs. George Wheatland of Salem, and Mrs. Charles Little of Arlington, who have been spending the summer at the McGilvery House in Searsport, gave a bingo party recently for their house guests, the Misses Sally and Kate Dow, Mrs. LeRoy Dow and Mrs. Carleton F. Bryant of Boston.

Miss Althea Libby of Boston is a guest at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A Paul in Belfast

Wynn's Revue In Final Week

Ed Wynn's new revue, "Boys and Girls Together," starts on its second and final week at the Shubert tonight.

The revue proceeds to Philadelphia next week for a fortnight's engagement and from there goes to New York, where it will open at the Broadhurst Theater the first week in October.

It will be at the Broadhurst that Wynn will celebrate his 30th season on the New York stage late next month. It was in 1910 that he made his musical comedy bow in "The Deacon and the Lady." Since then he has inhabited an even 14 hits and it's in the cards that "Boys and Girls Together" will qualify as the fifteenth.

Wynn has surrounded himself with a scintillating cast, notably the dancing DeMarcos and Walter Lang, who is also a dancer of show-stopping caliber; Jane Pickens, Dave Apollon and many, many others.

Georgia Sothern Week For Old Howard Fans

With "human dynamo" Georgia Sothern as its handsome ringleader, the Old Howard's new show this week promises to be the "hottest" in seasons.

There are 60 persons in the cast of "Ridin' High" and their support of Miss Sothern in the way of clowning, singing, hoofing and all-around nonsense point to a rollicking revue for the customers.

Georgia Southern

Another star in the company is Alvan Payne, a burlesque beauty whose recent Atlantic City appearance was most enthusiastically received. Other lovelies are the exotic, dancing Alma Maiben, and Helen Colby, whose singing and dancing are reputed to be of the better variety.

Heading the comedy divisions are Max Fuhrman and Harry J. Conley, the original "Elmer."

Fast-talking Murray Briscoe handles the master of ceremonies job and Jimmie Cavanaugh will sing the newest songs.

For specialty acts the show brings such recent sensations as Palmer and Forresta, adagio dancers; the Daley Trio, acrobats; Louise and Madeline, dancers, and the Vanderbilt Brothers, song-and-dance artists. And, of course, there is the well-trained and fetching chorus of 30

FLOCK OF STARS IN 'BOOM TOWN,' AT LOEW'S THURSDAY

Launches New Parade of Hits

Metro's "Boom Town," which is Hearst Columnist Damon Runyon's idea of "the best picture of the kind since "Cimarron," launches the new parade of fall hits at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters Thursday.

It boasts a million dollars' worth of screen talent, to wit: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Hedy LaMarr, Claudette Colbert and Frank Morgan and, to quote M. Runyon again, "it has everything but a message . . . being strictly entertainment."

Included in this entertainment are a total of five fights, one of which is a terrific battle between Tracy and Gable, the others, a frantic fight to blast out a roaring oil well fire, gushers tearing upward with mighty roars and Gable on a bucking mule; a dive into a sea of mud by Gable and Tracy to escape the bullets of two gun fighters, a fight between two dance hall girls, a dramatic holdup of a load of oil equipment in addition to comedy by Frank Morgan, Chill Wills and Minna Gombell and even the songs of the men who spud in for oil.

Tracy and Gable contest for Miss Colbert's affections and the handsome hero with the loving-cup ears not only wins her but Miss LaMarr as well.

Besides Morgan the supporting cast includes Lionel Atwill, Chill Willis, Marion Martin and Minna Gombell. Lesser roles are played by Joe Yule, Horace Murphy, Roy Gordon, Richard Lane, Casey Johnson, Baby Quintanilla, George Lessey, Sara Haden, Frank Orth, Frank McGlynn Sr., and Curt Bois.

Columbia's "The Lady in Question," with Brian Aherne and Rita Hayworth, will be the second feature.

RATHER than see beautiful Hedy Lamarr break up the home of Clk Gable and Claudette Colbert in "Boom Town," Spencer Tacy up and proposes to Hedy, and, thinking she's a golddigge shows her his income tax return. She laughs, tells him she wits Gable. Picture opens Thursday on Loew's screens.

Glenn Miller Sets Record at Boston

The week-end house record at the RKO Boston Theater was shattered when 60,297 people, thrilled to the "musical magic" of Glenn Miller and his orchestra.

Owing to the large number of shows being presented daily, the management has been able to facilitate the handling of all patrons coming to the theater to see the noted orchestra, so that seats are generally available at all times. This policy will continue through Wednesday night when Glen Miller and his boys will close their engagement at the RKO Boston.

After the Fire

By Adaline Scott

The Cast of Characters in "After the Fire"

LYDIA, who suffers because of a quarrel with CHARLIE, her fireman husband who has always been jealous of JOHN, his brother.

IT WAS 24 hours after the tenement fire broke out when Charlie telephoned Lydia. She was still sitting numbly with her fingers fastened to the black instrument.

The baby was jabbering in the kitchen where the morning sun streamed through the windows. A clock chimed eight times. Everything was the same as the beginning of any other day, and yet completely changed.

She rose experimentally as if she were not sure that she could stand on her feet. It was odd that she did not cry. There was such a queer feeling inside of her.

The dark hours of waiting were past. Yet, she could still see the imaginary scenes. Charlie with flames roaring around him, beams falling upon him, his young, strong body crushed.

She brushed shaking fingers across her eyes. She mustn't think like that. It was all over. Charlie would be home soon, safe and unharmed.

Unharmed? She wondered dully. Perhaps something far worse than physical injury had happened to him. She realized suddenly that she dreaded meeting her husband.

Oh, that was a horrible admission when she loved him so intensely. Yet it was true. It seemed as if all her thoughts, since she picked up the telephone and heard his tight voice, were mixed bitterly with this new fear.

Lydia lifted their small son out of the high chair and put him in his play pen. She evaded the grieving things in her mind by keeping her hands occupied with unpinning his bib and smoothing his dark curls. But something about the curve of the baby's smile plunged stabbingly into her heart.

Memories crowded upon her. She was playing baseball in the vacant lot again with Charlie and John, his brother. She was growing up and going to the movies and dances with them. Finally she was seeing Charlie in his fireman's uniform, his brother in a policeman's.

RIVALS IN LOVE

John was the more handsome of the two. He had a personality that caught you up into its gaiety and excitement, and a smile you couldn't forget. He was the natural one for Lydia to have fallen in love with. But she didn't.

Her heart turned to Charlie's quiet, steady strength, as if he were the sun. It was a little like something holy the way she felt toward him.

This thought carried her through her morning work. It seemed so reassuring, so remote from all the blackness.

Yet, it finally trapped her mind into another memory. Recalling her love for him, their marriage, their two years together seemed to lead her directly to the quarrel.

It wasn't the first one, of course. There had been others. But none of them had really meant anything. Just tiny flames that burned out swiftly. However, this last could grow into a raging fire, destroying them.

She tried to push the thought away from her, but it would not leave. She had to face it.

In the past, Charlie's jealousy had been a little funny. She knew how devoted he was to John, how much he admired him. And that was why he would have moments when he believed he was less worthy of her. Which was ridiculous!

She'd joke him out of it, she'd say, "I couldn't fall for a big overgrown clown like your John if he were the last man on earth!" or words to that effect. And the next minute they'd both be laughing.

The last time though and the tragedy that happened after made it desperately different. She didn't know now what had been the matter with her. But somehow she couldn't joke.

Charlie came home tired and snapped at her son. In a blinding flash, she was defending the little fellow. It was all so trivial. Still, out of it rose smoke-clouds that threatened their future happiness.

Too late to tell him.

Then the tenement fire. The eternity of waiting for news from him. The agony that she no doubt deserved!

How would she greet him? There must be no tears. Weeping would convince him of what did not exist.

She started dinner. To keep busy when he was so certain of his own convictions?

How could they go on with this barrier of misunderstanding forever between them? Denials or explanations would merely make him more positive now that she was trying to conceal the truth, since John was gone and she had only him left to lean on.

A step in the hall. The door opened.

Lydia looked into her husband's eyes, weary and as if they had been dipped in pain. She moved toward him, searching frantically in her soul for the right thing to say.

"I'm sorry, Charlie," she began, her lips cold. "We lost a good brother."

"We?" he echoed, dazed.

She nodded gently. "Of course, dear. John was my brother, too. Since childhood I've thought of him that way."

Charlie's arms went around her. "I've been all kinds of a fool," he confessed huskily. "I thought I lost you both."

Such a few little words. Yet, they found life again through them.

THE END.

Don't miss Clifford Clevenger's thrilling story, titled "Stunt Girl," on this page tomorrow.

"Charlie with flames roaring around him, beams falling on him."

"I always knew," he said, hurt, "I wasn't half good enough for you. You should have married John."

Lydia remembered that she wanted to take him in her arms then and kiss away the trouble in his eyes. But a stubborn force was driving her on.

She agreed that his brother did have a sunny disposition. She reminded him of John's way with the baby, and how much the child adored him. She made other cruel remarks that she didn't mean.

A vast and deep silence fell between them. In it she thought she could hear Charlie's heart beating miserably.

A part of her longed to tell him that, while his brother was all that she had said, he, her husband, was by far the most wonderful. However, the angry part of her would not let her speak.

A door closed and he was gone. It was one way to live through the stretch of time until he arrived.

"FOR YOU"

But Charlie's voice over the wire kept pounding in her ears. 'I have to tell you this now, Lydia, because I may not be able to when I see you. He did not die right away. He lay on the sidewalk, and couldn't speak. But he smiled. You know—that warm way he had. And I had a feeling it was meant for you."

She twisted a towel in taut hands. How would she ever make him realize that his brother, who had been on police duty at the fire and crushed by a falling wall, was not the man she loved? How could she ever make him believe her

Experts Mull New Profits Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Defense commission spokesmen and treasury officials were called before the Senate Finance Commission today in an effort to compromise a deadlock over the amortization provisions of the pending excess profits tax bill.

As the committee renewed its task to complete a sweeping revision of the House-approved bill, Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, spoke out in condemnation of the entire legislation. He called it an "unponderable mess."

Chairman Harrison (D.) of Mississippi insisted, however, that the Senate group had made "many improvements" in the House version "by simplifying it." He said he hoped to have the measure—aimed at preventing profiteering of defense orders—ready for Senate debate and possible passage later this week.

Boy on Birthday Sail Dies in Fall on Deck

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9—Little Ralph Bigney's joy knew no bounds. Celebrating his 12th birthday, the boy received several gifts for which he had longed.

Later, still ecstatic over his gifts, he went for a sail in a sloop. Tapping on the deck, he fell and died of a fractured neck.

HOW TO GET A LOAN AT LOWER COST

Reduced rates cut payments on all loans over $100

You can get a personal loan of $20 to $300 at Household Finance at rates substantially below the lawful maximum—if you can repay in small monthly installments.

Payments to fit your purse

You may choose the most convenient repayment plan from the table below. Suppose that you need $100 and you can readily repay $9.75 a month. Your installments will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

See the sample loans and payment plans in the table. (Loans also made in other amounts and for other periods.) Payments in the table repay everything. Household's rate of 2½% per month has long been below the lawful maximum. Now a new reduction has cut Household's rate to 2% per month on that part of your loan in excess of $100.

Simple to borrow

We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. And you don't have to ask friends or fellow workers to sign the papers with you.

28 Lettermen Await Orders From Hanley

BOSTON UNIVERSITY IS AN OLD AND, until recently, architecturally arthritic (Gawsh!) college which sprawled through Boston's downtown entrails like a civic tape worm. Its halls of learning were brick buildings of Spanish War style. Its administration offices were scattered like confetti through the brownstone Back Bay area. Its athletic plant was, and is, a charming, sylvan spot some 15 miles away—a country club vista fringed by pine, firs, balsam and corn-shocks against a background of hazy Wellesley Hills.

AUSTEN LAKE

B. U.'s young gentlemen of the football ensemble (Guh-rashus!) are living a communal life in Riverside's pretty painted dormitory — some 40 of them. They sleep like recruit soldiers in double-deck military bunks in a long, low-ceilinged room where clothes hang from overhead pipes like felons on a gibbet and the air is redolent with that unmistakable athletic odor—the sweetish combination of liniments and zoo scents. They eat in a basement, neatly wainscotted and abutted by a hotel kitchen where a vacationing chef (Sid Spauls) carves succulent slivers of roast cow.

Pat (his real Christian names are Leroy Bernard) Hanley is a trifle downcast! And why? Because his last year's center (Ray Needham) and his two tackles (Paul Sullivan and Joe Giannotti) graduated—only those three of a letter-squad of 28. Fancy that! Only 25 letter men back—why Pat's practically riddled!

B. C., Western Maryland Big Home Games

This year's home schedule, with the exception of the B. C. game (at Fenway Park) will all be played at Nickerson field—the first time in three years that B. U. has had the use of its grassy rectangle. (In 1938 the hurricane blew the stands down. In 1939 the State carved a hunk off the gridiron for an aqueduct.) So the schedule, typically small college and far from the over-inflated lists which B. U. teams have played in the past, doesn't warrant a major setting. Only two of the home games, B. C. (Nov. 9) and Western Maryland (Nov. 23) are big enough turn-stile attractions to pull a pay load.

Saturday was the initial rough-house day, when P-for-Patricola, issued armor, pads and helmets and sent his two varsities at each other. In other years he used to call one team "Experience" and the other "Inexperience." But, with two veteran units he merely designated one as "A-plus" and the other as "A-minus."

The "Pluses" lined up James (Capt.) McDonald and Cliff Fitzpatrick, ends; Ray Valas and Ed Rooney, tackles; Ken Skoropowski and Charles Cremens, guards; Sid Michaels, center. John Connearney, Jim Cassidy, Jim Sullivan and Ralph Salvati, backs. The "Minuses" were Bob Brown and George Murphy, ends; John Wedemeyer and George Rafalski, tackles; Dan Liebman and John Boylan, guards; Dave Gill, center, George Pantano, Frank Provinzano, Francis Morris (Al Clark) and Walter Williams, backs.

One might add that a slight, O ever so teensy-weensy matter of debility in certain . . . er . . . ah . . . scholastic matters cast a shadow on the eligibility of four of the lads, whose names, to spare them embarrassment, I will not mention. But the four are among the forty, who, after a week of boiling out under a hot September sun, have lost most of their summer's lard and are down to bone and brisket.

Football a Sacrifice for Terriers

Football is something of a sacrifice for most of the B. U. kids, who are mostly worker-students with outside jobs which range from piloting hotel elevators to dry-nursing the neighbor's children. McDonald is night manager in a hotel. Salvati labors, Pantano drives a truck, Murphy is an iceman, Michaels mixes ingredients in a swallow parlor, and so forth. So the lads take their football as a privilege and not as a ho hum corner of the college curriculum.

Charley Cremens is a sample—a summer-time pick and shovel worker and specializes in post-hole digging. Chass is one of those museum curiosities, a "watch charm guard," weighing on the thin side of 150, and a tough, square jawed little monkey.

(He intercepted a Western Maryland pass last autumn and wabbled 85 yards for the game's only score. "What'd you think while I was fish-tailing, slew-hipping and wriggling away from tackler after tackler?" he asked Coach Pat. "Tell you the truth," replied Patsy, "I covered my eyes. I couldn't spy on your agony."

But the run, none the less, goes down in B. U. annals as the most muscular, two-legged sprint in history.

Murray Kramer, the B. U. press pacifier, says Hanley employs the "Warner system," which is one of those basic formations. The fact is that Pat has a system of his own. (He talks about "butterfly" tackles and "spider" blocks.) A master of detail, it is a far cry back to the loosely co-ordinated day of pre-Hanley football when the kids were inept battering fummies for major colleges like West Point, Yale, Holy Cross, etc.

Indeed B. U. has passed from that growing pains sport period of being a kind of traveling medicine show when the late George V. Brown ran athletics on a hand-to-mouth basis, and that intermediate era of hilarious hoople when Dean Frederick Rand Rogers (I hear he's gonna start a college of his own) was operating like a male chaperone at a girl's seminary.

It makes sound sense now and I'd like to lay a congratulatory

DEJECTED SOX GO WEST; FLAG HOPES SMASHED

NICE WORK, EARL . . . Earl Coombs, one of the great outfielders (back to camera) saved Charlie Keller's bacon when Charlie Gelbert, third sacker of Red Sox, tried to nip him off first base. Earl now serves as one of Manager McCarthy's coaches and has proved a valuable cog in the Yankee machinery. The Red Sox took it on the button again from the Yankees, 9-4.

NOT ENOUGH—Bobby Doerr's home run in the second inning off Spud Chandler was not enough to keep the Red Sox in the American League pennant race. Nobody was aboard when the brilliant Sox infielder golfed his 20th four-ply wallop. Flash Gordon, Yankees' shortstop, hit for the cycle with a single, double, triple and home run.

Hose Start Final Tour Of West

There spirits blue and their sit-downs bright scarlet as a result of the twoday spanking by the Yankees, our Red Sox wended westward today for the opening tr. Detroit on the morrow of their final Western appearance.

No brass bands accompanied Clan Cronin to the station nor were there any thousand of hysterical fans singing Tessie and wishing them bon voyage.

For this and a lack on post "crucial series" expladed right in our kissers and instead of being on Cleveland and Detroit's heels we would up on our own tails.

The disconsolate group of ball players boarding the train were momentarily heartened by the thought that at least one of their rooters had deserted them when a messenger boy dashed up with a telegram for Manager Joe.

But it was from that guy Anonymous again, and it read, "Hit the road you bums."

Prior to their departure the Hose were informed that the front office had purchased H. H. "Dick" Newsome, a classy Pacific Coast League pitcher who compiled a record of 21 wins and 10 losses for San Diego this season.

Newsome will report at Sarasota in the spring and attempt to win himself a starting berth as a Sox pitcher.

FIVE HURLERS FAIL

With gents like Galehouse, Bagby, Dickman, Wilson and Ostermueller for opposition he should find it a cinch.

Incidentally, what ever happened to Galehouse? Is he still with the Red Sox, and if so is he getting paid for whatever he's doing?

It isn't fair to keep him hidden

Sox Buy Newsome

The Boston Red Sox announced the straight cash purchase of H. H. "Dick" Newsome, 26-year-old right hand pitcher, from San Diego in the Pacific Coast League for 1941 delivery.

Newsome has a season's record of 21 games won and 10 lost. Six of his victories were shutouts.

BEES DROP TWIN BILL TO PROTHRO TROOPS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9 (INS)—The Phillies snapped a seven-game losing streak taking both ends of a doubleheader from Boston, 2 to 1 and 3 to 1.

The first game went 12 innings before Philadelphia pushed across the winning marker and gave Kirby Higbe the nod over Dick Errickson in a pitchers' duel. The Phillies garnered 12 hits, including a homer by Danny Litwhiler, sensational rookie recently recalled from the Eastern League. Higbe flanked the busy Bees in all but the seventh when Boston scored its lone marker.

A three run splurge in the third inning of the nightcap was all St Johnson needed to annex a victory. Each team collected seven safeties, with Eddie Miller registering Boston's only run on a homer in the seventh. Jim Tobin was charged with the loss.

The Bees left for Boston last night and will rest up today, opening a two day engagement with the Cincinnati Reds tomorrow.

DIZ HURLS WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Dizzy Dean, back with the Chicago Cubs after a three-month comeback test at Tulsa of the Texas League, will get his first starting assignment Wednesday against the Dodgers at Brooklyn, Manager Gabby Hartnett announced today.

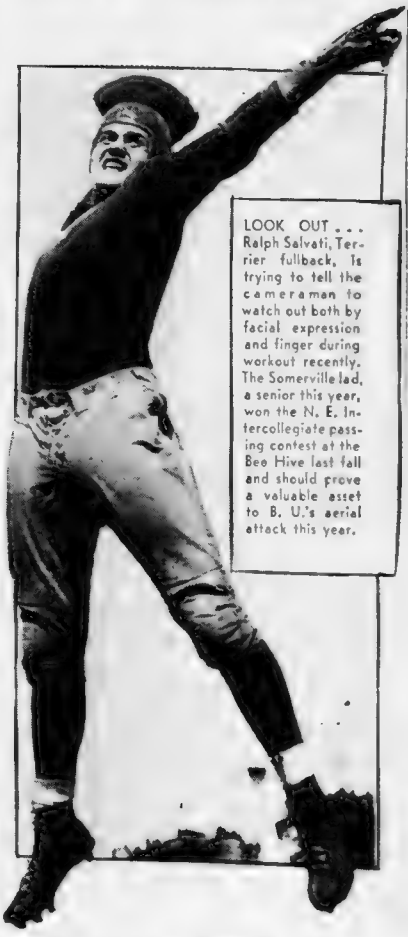
Hanley's Terriers Prepared for Tough Campaign

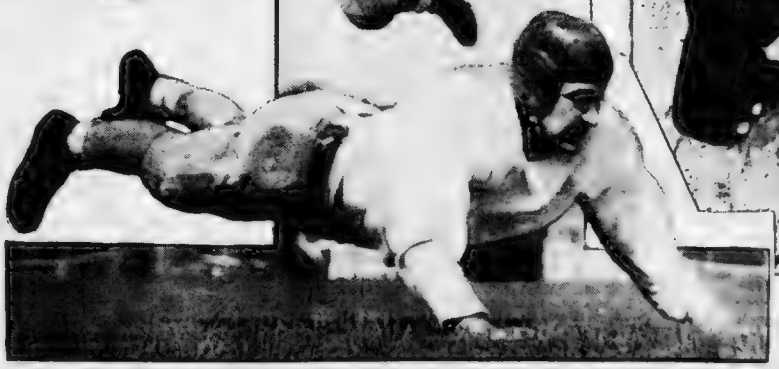
EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1940

FOLLOW THE LEADER Seems to be the game these Boston University backs are playing but alas, no. It's just part of the daily routine they have to go through in preparation for their regular games. Reading left to right, they are: Charlie Thomas, Frank Provenzano, Jim Sullivan, George Pantano, Al Clark, John Conneaerney, Aiden Burnell and Ralph Salvati.



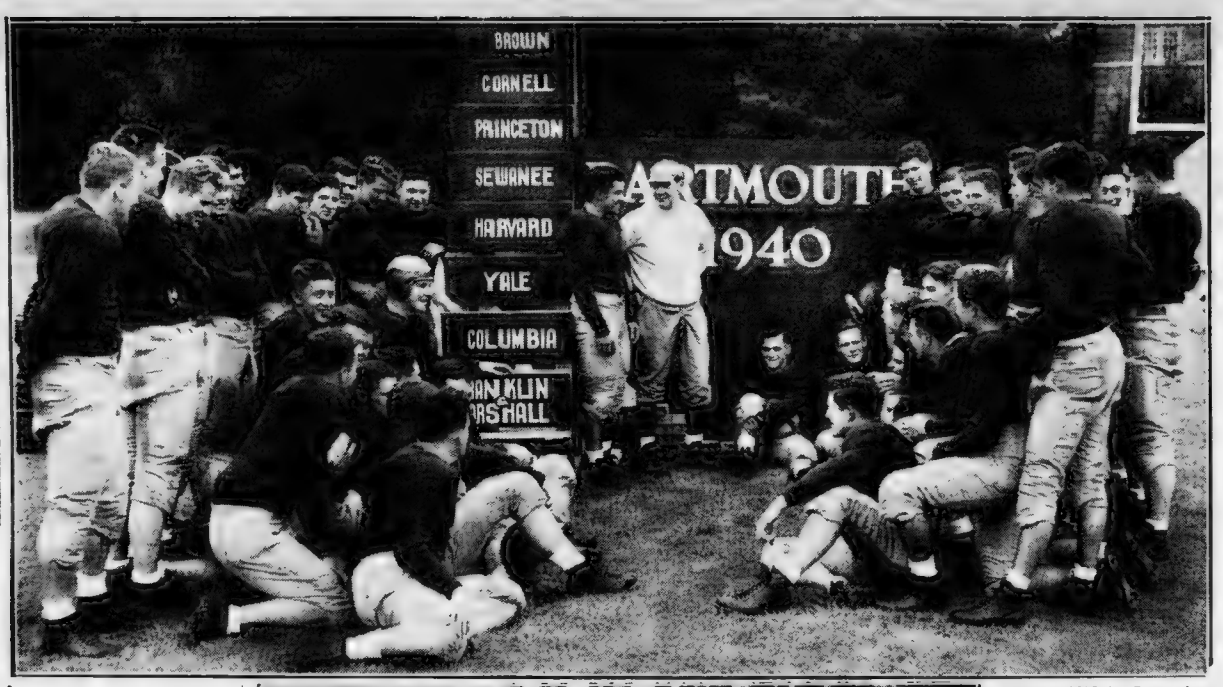
LOOK OUT . . . Ralph Salvati, Terrier fullback, is trying to tell the cameraman to watch out both by facial expression and finger during workout recently. The Somerville lad, a senior this year, won the N. E. Intercollegiate passing contest at the Bee Hive last fall and should prove a valuable asset to B. U.'s aerial attack this year.

ANOTHER WILLIAMS . . . The name of Williams will probably not be forgotten by Hub fans once the baseball season comes to a close for, leaping, high, wide and handsome is young Walter Williams, sophomore sensation of Pat Hanley's successful eleven of last year. Williams, who makes his home in the Back Bay, and prepped at English and Huntington Schools, is tagged as triple-threat



HEIGH HO, SILVA! Jim Sullivan, a 141-pound halfback, takes a flying leap over the prostrate form of Johnny Wedemeyer. It wasn't supposed to work out this way for Wedemeyer made a desperate attempt to stop the high-flying Terrier, but with little success. Sullivan, former tackle, and Wedemeyer exchanged jobs this year with the consent of Coach Pat Hanley.

REACHES FOR HIGH ONE . . . Jim McDonald, left end and captain of the 1940 Boston University team, seems to be experiencing a little difficulty in grabbing this pass out of the air but, who wouldn't be gazing for the cameraman in such a position.



Vito Ananis Named Captain Of All-Stars

Swede Nelson moves his Eastern College All-Stars into Fenway Park today for a final tune-up before tackling the Washington Redskins in the Yawkey ball yard tomorrow night.

The Redskins got in last night and will also work out at the Fenway today.

The All-Stars' backfield is begining to take shape. Swede is giving the fellows who worked together in New York the preference. This means that Ed Boell of N. Y. U., Myron Darmohray of Georgetown, Ronnie Cahill of Holy Cross, and Vito Ananis of B. C. will probably make up the starting quartet.

They will be spelled by Lloyd Ickes of Penn. State, Pete Cignetti of B. C., Bill Tranavitch of Rutgers, and Bombshell Bill Hutchinson of Dartmouth. Ananis was named captain at an election held yesterday.

Nelson is apparently planning an aerial blitz for the Redskins. He has three first string passers on the squad as well as four excellent pass-snatchers.

Ronnie Cahill will be the starting pass tosser, with Ickes and Boell both available.

The former Crusader caught the public fancy in New York by connecting seven perfect passes in a row. Ickes didn't have much of a chance to show his stuff in the Polo Grounds, but Swede insists that the Penn. State lad is every bit as fine a passer as Cahill.

FAT ERASER—Just give the Dartmouth football squad a few days on the stomach exerciser and there won't be an ounce of fat in the group. The boys are shown during limbering up drills on the initial day of fall practice.

FIRST SESSION—Capt. Lou Young, a guard, and Coach Earl Blaik of Dartmouth, center, greet grid candidates at the opening practice of the Big Green squad. Coach Blaik talks over the coming schedule, a tough one.

BIG GREEN MYSTERY, SAYS BLAIK

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 9 (INS)—The man who guides the football destinies of Dartmouth College today tabbed his 1940 gridiron edition a "mystery" team.

Graduation has riddled the Dartmouth squad. The current edition has inherited only 11 lettermen.

While seniors are slated to start in eight of the eleven posts, upon the shoulders of the 22 sophomores rests the fate of the Big Green.

Nevertheless, Mentor Earl Blaik appears optimistic.

Among the letter men the Indians are depending on are Capt. Lou Young, Jr., left guard, the iron man of the 1939 eleven; Bob Krieger, left end; Bob O'Brien, left tackle, and Quarterback Don Norton.

Other familiar players who checked in were Charles Camp, left tackle; Stu May, right tackle; John Highmark, left guard; Monty Winship, right tackle; Jack Orr, right halfback; Charles Pearson, center; John Guenther, right guard, and Dale Bartholomew, right halfback. Of these men Orr, Guenther, Winship and Pearson won varsity "D's" in 193, while the others were prominent reserves.

The biggest gap Coach Blaik will have to fill is the left halfback post vacated by the graduation of Bill Hutchinson.

Ailing Riggs Tackles McNeil in Amateur Tennis Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9 (INS)—An ailing Bobby Riggs, who barely eked out a victory, will meet Don McNeill of Oklahoma City this afternoon for the tennis championship of the United States, after last year's finalists, Alice Marble and Helen Jacobs battle it out for the women's crown.

Riggs, the defending champion, edged past Midshipman Joe Hunt in a 5-set match that knocked the 13,000 spectators off their chairs. In bed with the grippe almost until time to play, Riggs won, 4—6, 6—3, 8—7, 6—3, 6—4, by stealing the net position away from the desperate Hunt and by continuing to battle after his once-bronzed face had bleached out whiter than his trunks.

McNeill, national clay court champion and seeded No. 2 in the tournament, sprayed his classical shots into Jack Kramer's court without surcease and went through the lambasting young Californian, 6—1, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3.

Alice Marble, the sunny California girl who is gunning for her third straight championship, belted her way mannishly through the defense of Valerie Scott, of England, 6—3, 6—3.

HELEN MEETS TARTAR

Miss Jacobs, 4-time winner of the event, had a tougher time. She outbattled England's other threat, Mary Hardwick, 2—6, 6—1, 6—4, in one of those grim engagements which only women's tennis produces.

Watson Washburn, Davis Cup doubles player of a generation ago, won the national veterans' championship for the second straight year. The sober, bespectacled attorney slapped out a 6—4, 6—2 victory over the veteran, S. Jarvis Adams, Jr.

They won't forget that Riggs-Hunt match soon. Hunt was as sharp as a new razor, full of fight and confidence. Riggs looked sick at the start, but that might have been because of the way the blond navy man was coming to the net with a snakey undercut shot and angling off volleys at impossible angles or breaking down the fences with his overhead.

Hunt went off the court for the 10-minute rest period leading two sets to one. Still full of vigor he went to 3—1 in the third set, continuing his net attack, and nothing seemed able to stop him.

But Riggs, a great money player who knows he must win this tournament in order to turn pro, hung on desperately and by dint of refusing to miss even Hunt's hardest shots, and by taking the net away from the Annapolis man, ran off five straight games for the set. That tied it at two sets each.

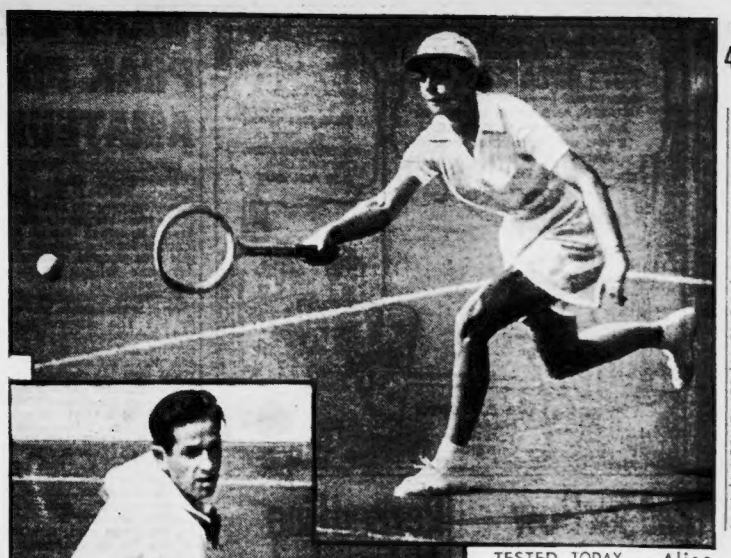
HUNT MISSED OPPORTUNITY

Riggs seemed well on his way to victory in the final set when Hunt came back with surprising savagery, tied it at 2—2 and came within a single easy shot of making it 4—4.

He missed a set-up forehand at the net, with Riggs woefully out of position, and if he had made it he would have tied the score, with his own service coming up in the ninth game. But he missed and that single shot killed his last chance. The miss gave Riggs that fateful 5-3 lead, and they swapped serves on the next two games for Riggs' stirring victory.

Hunt banged over 72 placements to Riggs' 52 but Riggs kept his errors down to a minimum. Hunt's game was perfect in all details except his lobbing. His lifts invariably missed the backline.

As good as their tennis was, McNeill and Kramer let down the gallery. Kramer threw the full vigor of his baleful game against the rock-steady young Oklahoman. He banged out many colorful placements, but McNeill's steadiness threatened to break him from the start. And did. It wasn't a hard victory for McNeill, and it sends him into the finals in tip-top shape.



TESTED TODAY . . . Alice Marble, queen of the court, meets Helen Jacobs, former champion, at Forest Hills today in the finals of the women's singles. Alice proved every inch a champion in her match with Valerie Scott of England, who proved a tartar. The California miss finally subdued the English lass, 6—3, 6—3.

TAKES ON DON . . . Bobby Riggs, U. S. tennis champ, is picked by the experts to successfully successfully defend his crown today when he meets Don McNeill of Oklahoma in the finals at Forest Hills. Bobby had a hectic session with Midshipman Joe Hunt yesterday and only by rallying in the fourth set to win five games in a row was he able to save his diadem. The scores of the match were 4—6, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

from the loyal Red Sox, rooters. They've tired of hollering "Take him out," at the same old faces and it has been weeks since they've seen Denny stroll to the showers as only he can.

Yesterday's parade of pitching palookas was typical of what Fenway fandom has come to expect. It was Fleming, then Osty, followed by Johnson, relieved by Bagby and finally Dickman, as the Bronx Bombers fashioned 12 blows for 19 total bases to win in a 9 to 4 walk.

Joe Gordon particularly relished the brand of hurling being served up by our side yesterday, completing the cycle with a homer, triple, double and single in four official times at bat and walking twice in the bargain.

Dahlgren and Red Rolfe picked up a pair of hits apiece and every other Yankee in the lineup, with the exception of Crosetti and the pitcher, connected once. Quite a day.

The Yankees have had a red hot run here in the East, but even last year, when they were at their greatest, they played only so-so ball in the Western orchards and this year they haven't even done that.

Cleveland's pitching is too sound for the club to slip much further than it has in the past week and no matter what may be said of them socially they have won too many ball games the hard way to paint them with a stripe.

Also, let it be borne in mind that Detroit is plenty hot right now and playing in the home pasture. That's the team that ought to do it.

Mize Hits Three Consecutive Homers

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9 (AP)—Johnny Mize, slugging first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, clouted three successive home runs, boosting his season's total to 41, as the Red Birds battled Pittsburgh in the first game of a doubleheader.

WARD AT PEAK FOR AMATEUR

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 9 (INS)—Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., the defending champion, gave the rest of the field of 150 something to think about today as he swung through his final practice for the national amateur golf championship, which starts today over Winged Foot's famed west course.

Playing in a foursome with Bing Crosby, actor-crooner, who qualified in the Los Angeles sectionals; Billy Bob Coffey, Fort Worth, Tex., entrant, and big Craig Wood, home pro, who went along for the ride, Ward went one stroke over par 36 going out, then came home in 31, five under, for a 68, and with that pronounced himself ready to turn back the threats from all over the nation. Ward had three birdies and an eagle on the back nine.

While Ward was thus getting in his final tuneup with the best practice score reported, most of the rest of the unwieldly field also went over the course in the final touching up before going into the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds today.

64 TO QUALIFY

The second qualifying round will follow tomorrow, leaving 64 contenders to fight it out in match play thereafter through Saturday.

The course was in splendid shape for the first big tournament held here since Bobby Jones, the greatest of amateurs, won the open title in 1929, but the course was tough enough to cause most observers to predict generally high scores and, threfore, high qualifying totals.

Crosby, for instance, shot a 79 and Coffey a 76. Wood, a long-driving professional who last year was in the playoff for the National open title, carded a 71, one under par.

Included among those who survived sectional qualifying and who now will try to come through the eliminations for the tournament proper are 10 past champions, with only two of them—besides Ward, the defender—given any kind of a chance to win. Johnny Goodman, the 1937 title-holder, and Willie Turnesa of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., winner in 1938, are regarded as fair bets.

EVANS COMPETING

Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, who in the last few weeks has won the New York state and the eastern championships; Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, 1936 champion; Frankie Strafaci of Great Neck, N. Y., and Wilford Wehrle of Niles, Ill., also were mentioned.

The former champions in the field are Chick Evans, 1916 and 1930; Francis Ouimet, 1914 and 1931; Jesse Guilford, 1921; Jess Sweetser, 1922; Max Marston, 1923; George Dunlap, 1933; Fischer, Goodman, Turnesa and Ward—the man the rest seemingly must catch.

Sportsman Dies Following Dog

WEST BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 9 (AP)—Arthur Roy, 60, of Fall River, owner of the New England champion field dog Roy's Husky Boy, died of a heart ailment while running an entry in the field trials of the Plymouth County Cover Dog Association.

Tanners Open Season With Cantabs

Peabody Out to Regain Schoolboy Championship

By SAM BROGNA

Taking a back seat last year after winning the state schoolboy championship the year previous, Peabody High School's football team is ready to regain the top of the ladder.

The Tanners will make their first bid for the lost crown Saturday night when they open the season in a nocturnal clash against Cambridge Latin. According to Coach Seeglitz, his boys have drawn a tough opponent for the opening game. He honestly believes that the Cantabs are larger and slightly faster than his own eleven.

"This Cambridge Latin team is in for a good year. It is a veteran club, larger and slightly faster than ours and one that, from all reports is listed for States titles," says Coach Seeglitz.

"I wish it were some school not quite as talented. But, face it we must and so long as the boys from Greater Boston don't give us the "business" at the start, I will be more than satisfied.

"I am sure of one thing though. My boys with Robert Henry as their captain, will be in the game every minute, and will be the fightingest team I have had at Peabody."

In an effort to strengthen his ariel attack, Seeglitz, who loves the wide open brand to play rather than line thrusts, was forced to switch Lewis Surman from right end to the backfield because of his passing ability.

At quarterback, he has Max Krawchuck, the youngster who looked very good in spots last year and a possessor of great speed. Max weighs a mere 145 pounds. It was expected that he would be more of a heavyweight this fall after a summer in a CCC camp. But he has fooled them all and tips the scales at about the same weight.

The other two members of the backfield are Capt. Henry and either John Perakis or Tony Skangas. Bob Henry was a lineman last year and should be a big help in backing up the forward wall this fall.

Frank Kolodiej, a 152-pound lad, Alfred Surman, brother to Lewis, the passer, and Edward Tyburc form the right side of the line. At the pivot spot will be Pete Polinski.

Bill Augusto, a rugged boy; Isadore Shienhiet and John Gargas will take care of the left side. Coach Seeglitz rates Alfred Surman one of the best tackles in the state.

This is the lineup Bill named which will most likely take the field Saturday night against the Cantabs.

Following this night clash will be five other lamp-lit games of a nine-game schedule. These will be with Newburyport, St. James of Haverhill, Chelsea, Lynn English and Lynn Classical. The daylight contests will be played with Salem, Gloucester and Beverly.

wreath on the thinning scalps of Dr. John A. Harmon and superstitious Pat Hanley. (His telephone number is N. N. 7777—his car license is 777,000. He won't sleep in a hotel room which adds up to 13, 23, 33, etc. While winning he won't change his clothes from underwear to ulster).

Like B. C. this fall B. U. has plenty of everything except sophomores. Dave Gold looks like the answer to Pat's prayer for a center. John Boyjian is a second string guard and George Morris is a mother's helper in the backfield. Those are the only second-year men. It bodes ill for the next year, for 13 of the 25 "B" wears are taking degrees in June. ("I'll be building character next season" mused Pat—the old wheeze of the coach without top-grade material).

One of the curious duties of each B. U. captain is to supervise the Field House—a combination of dietician, janitor, locker room steward and big brother. So tomorrow and every day during the fall you will find Jim McDonald meandering about the butlery—a wholesome looking lad with sober eyes, a cheery grin and a dish towel in his hand.

The boys gobble their noonday luncheons of salad (wash basin size), pour milk from tin pitchers big as butter churns and go upstairs to loll on their bunks until practice time. One half expects to hear the hoarse bark of a top-sergeant, the shrill bleat of his whistle and the command, "Fall in! Full marching order. Count Off!" (Hanley, incidentally is taking his examination for his majority in the Marine Reserve and is subject to immediate call. For that matter almost every lad in the B. U. squad is an R. O. T. C. member.)

Few college squads live in such chummy freemasonry as the 40-odd kids quartered at Riverside. They live, study, work and play throughout the autumn. They take turns waiting on the table, repairing their sports gear and manicuring the terraces. They keep their own discipline and perform their own chamber-maid chores.

The college pays for it (remember the sit-down strike of the B. U. squad for free board under the Rogers regime? They won!) In fact the college pays for almost everything connected with undergraduate sport, never having to balance its budget from its box-office receipts and levying a tuition charge to cover its athletic bills.

The U. S. Youth Administration pays a small subsidy ($9 to $11 monthly) to some 700 students, among them many of the athletes. And the college grants a few partially paid scholarships ($75 is tops). The rest is footed by the kids. For example the chocolate-dark Negro lad, Charles Thomas, is supported by his old mates in the Paul Lawrence Dunbar school of Dayton, O., each of whom contribute 10c a month toward his education. For, in late years, B. U. has been tiptoeing through the lilies with a wreath of virtue in its hair. And in closing I would predict that B. U. probably won't lose a game this cider-time—except to B. C., unless, of course, they lose to Manhattan.

(Austen Lake, great football writer, continues his standout series on New England colleges tomorrow when he reports on Holy Cross.)

Star of Ed Wynn's Show Is Smarter Than Many Professors

BOSTON, Sept. 8 (JW)—Jerry Cooper, world famous stage, radio, screen, night club star and former Master of Ceremonies of Hollywood Hotel Radio Program, who is making his Musical Comedy debut in Ed Wynn's new hit Musical Revue, "Boys and Girls Together," now playing at the Shubert Theatre, is serious about his good head of hair. Like many other leaders in the entertainment and business worlds, he consults John E. Warner and associates. Unlike many college professors, he takes care of his hair because he realizes it is an important asset contributing toward his good appearance. Business today places a high premium on personal appearance, and if you are losing your hair you should, in your own best interests, find out if John E. Warner can help you. Statistics show that 85% of all baldness is due to local scalp conditions which can be checked and corrected if caught in time. But John E. Warner will not accept any case for treatment where the applicant is bald or the hair is too far gone. There is no charge for a private consultation and scalp examination. His offices are conveniently located at 515 Washington Street, near the corner of West Street (opposite R. H. White's). Suite 710-715. Phone Hub. 1705. Hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. daily—Saturdays to 6 P. M. Fees for treatment are very moderate. There is a separate department for women. Adv.

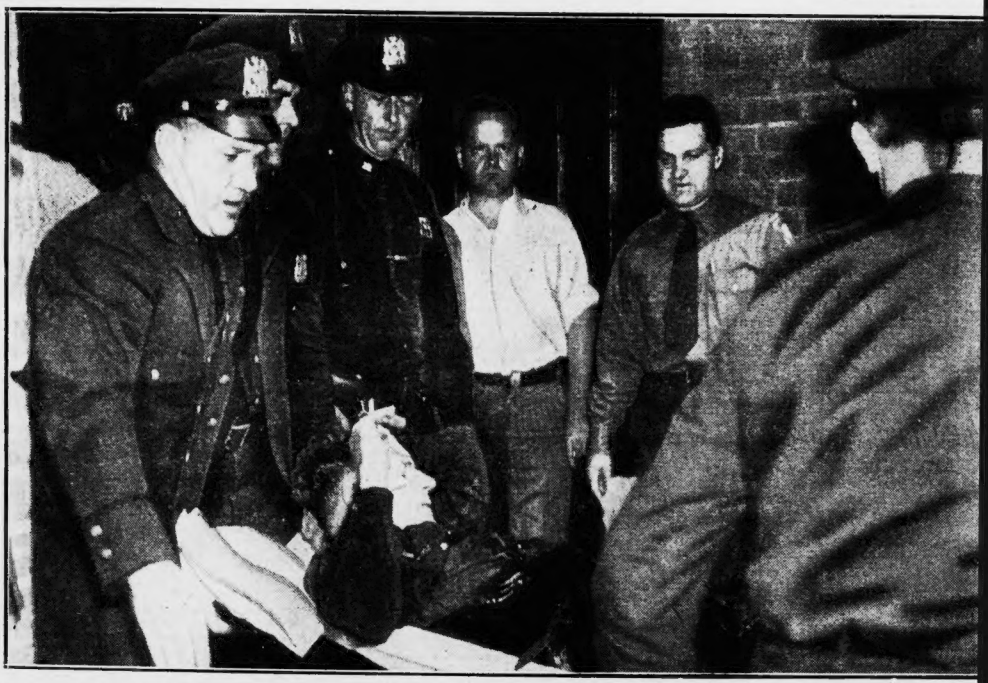
Officer Shot With Own Gun

John Schafran of Philadelphia, beaten and subdued, ascends stairs at New York police headquarters in custody of detectives after he had snatched gun from Officer Thomas O'Sullivan, arresting him, and shot the patrolman in the stomach. At right...



Patrolman O'Sullivan calmly puffs cigarette while he is taken to hospital on stretcher by comrades. Schafran allegedly seized O'Sullivan's revolver from its holster and shot him without warning. The officer is in critical condition.
